SKIN, SCALP AND BLOOD

Diseases Cured by Cuticura Remedies When Hot Springs, Doctors and All Other Medicines Fail.

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the Cuticura Remedies when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail and tried several doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John P. Finley (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), spoke to me about Cuticura, and I consented to give them a trial, with the result that I am perfectly cured. There is now no sore about me. I think I can show the largest surface where my sufferings sprang from of any one in the state. The Cuticura Remedies are the best skin and blood cures manufactured. I refer to druggist John P. Finley and Dr. D. C. Montgomery, both of this place, and to Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

ALEXANDER BEACH, Greenville, Miss.

Mr. Beach used the Cuticura Remedies at our request, with results as above stated.

SCROFULA 7 YEARS CURED.

I have been troubled with scrofula seven years, which first started on the top of my head, giving me infinite trouble, with constant itching, causing dry scales, and a watery liquid exuded from under the scales. I tried it for seven years unsuccessfully, and was unable to check it until I found your Cuticura Remedies. One box Cuticura, one cake Cuticura Soap and one bottle Cuticura Resolvent completely cured me, my skin becoming perfectly clear and smooth. H. J. DAVIS,

SKIN DISEASE 5 YEARS CURED.

The "Telegraph" Declares that England is in Danger.

GLADSTONE HOPEFUL FOR IRELAND

The Pope Takes Exception to Parnell's Remarks—Gen Boulanger's Book—The Anglo French Convention

LONDON May 10—The Daily Telegraph in a column article headed England in Danger,' asserts on the highest military authority that the strength of the army is entirely insufficient It says If extra men were enlisted to morrow there would be no barracks accommodations for them Many of the artillery batteries are provided with the worst guns served to any army Though we possess an unsurpassed gun we have no means for manufacturing guns, except after much delay We also have the best magazine rifle yet invented, but not a single regiment is provided with such rifles Army stores are lamentably insufficient The naval situation is almost as bad The armaments of forts guns served to volunteers, and shot and shells at Woolwich are mostly of obsolete patterns Four of the finest armored vessels are with out guns and two of them will have none until March, 1889"

GLADSTONE HOPEFUL

Of Better Times for Ireland in the Near Future.

LONDON, May 10—An address signed by 3750 dissenting ministers was presented to Gladstone yesterday, expressing their sympathy with him in his efforts to reconcile England and Ireland In reply to the address Gladstone said that during this session the Parnellites, despite the pressing needs of Ireland, had refrained from urging their claims and had assisted the government to expedite business Whether or not parliament was employed at this or that given time in discussing Ireland, it was Ireland alone that truly held the key to legislation The government knew that the nation was with home rule and therefore guided affairs in parliament so as to delay the time when a ministry would be in power pledged to propose home rule for Ireland The majority in the house of commons thought they could go on for five years They put this against his life as an old man, but the life of an old or young man would not affect the final settlement [Cheers] Justice would be done to Ireland Ere long the national sentument would assert itself The tories had plumed themselves upon being defenders of law and order, and instead of maintaining order and government, had promoted murderous breaches of law Parnell was as much devoted to the maintenance of law and order as anyone Neither he nor Parnell vindicated the plan of campaign The government's conduct had created the plan of campaign by making law odious to the people The plan of the government seemed to be to insult, exasperate and degrade the Irish As soon as the terrible facts regarding suffering in Ireland were brought home to the upright minds of the people of England they would unite to redress the sad errors of the past

LOUISIANA'S SUDDEN GROWTH.

St Louis Globe-Democrat.

The New Orleans democratic journals declare that it was the negro vote which gave Louisiana to the bourbons in the recent election The negroes were not bulldozed this year, nor were they so indifferent as to stay away from the polls. The colored brother, indeed, impressed with the importance of the contest turned out in full force and voted—the democratic ticket This tale may be true but, all the same, the average Caucasian outside the state will be skeptical on that point

We have not seen the official figures of the vote in the state, nor do we know whether or not the have yet been made public The first estimate of the majority was from 20 000 to 40 000 This was increased to 65,000 a few days later, and subsequently placed at 85 000 Whether it will be left at this figure or raised to 100,000 or 125 000 we have no means of knowing It will strike most persons, however that a majority of 85 000 is somewhat capacious when it is remembered that the entire democratic vote in the state for Cleveland in 1885 was but 62 529 The republicans must have polled a few votes in the state this year Warmouth, the gubernatorial nominee of that party, imagined that he was making a moderately lively canvass and there are evidences that several republicans appeared at the polls in Orleans and a few other parishes and deposited their ballots The question now is, what became of those ballots?

The vote in the Parish of Rapides is placed at about 7000, nearly all democratic The democratic vote in Rapides in 1884 was just 1743, and the aggregate vote of the parish 2627 This year however Rapides appears to have polled considerably more than twice as many votes and almost all of them are bourbon Was the election of Gen Nicholls so much more consequence than the election of Grover Cleveland that Rapides should feel impelled to nearly triple its vote to bring it about

In increase in population Dakota has been assigned pre-eminence among the states and territories in recent years But if the increase of votes in Rapides has all come from an expansion in population then the ratio of growth of that parrish is at least twice as great as that of the average county in Dakota So far as we can learn there have been no great gold or silver mines discovered in Rapides since November, 1884 nor has Cleveland's election had any exhilarating effect upon its industries beyond those felt in the other parishes The conclusion therefore is irresistible that the growth of Rapides has been shared by the remainder of the state If these assumptions are legitimate in census report of 1890 will show that the empire state of the Union is not New York, but Louisiana

OUR AGENTS HEARD FROM.

The Chicago Immigration Emissary Writes a Unique Letter.

He Tells of Eastern Ignorance Concerning Portland—Reports from Southern California—Notes from the Board Rooms.

The first order of business at the special meeting of the immigration board yesterday was the reading of communications. Under this heading the following characteristic epistle was heard from Agent Moorehead:

HOTEL BARKER, OMAHA, May 5, 1888.

"Where is Portland, mister?"

"Why, it is the metropolis of the Northwest—a beautiful city, containing 60,000 inhabitants and—"

"Oh, let up! What are ye givin' us? We never heard of it afore. It ben't nigh as big as 'Comah or Sattul, and you can't give us a game like that, old man. If it wur as big as ye say, we would be sure of heard 'bout it."

"But, dear friends, I admit what you say to be partly true. You have probably never heard of it before, and my business here today is to tell you something about it. If you but know half as much about it as I do, the country here wouldn't hold you another day, and if you will listen I have a lot of good news for you."

And then for a while ears and mouths are wide open. I have the field all to myself, and as I portray the glories of our country, and endeavor in my humble but earnest way to show them the advantages to be obtained in that land of perpetual summer, excitement runs high, gets the best of them again, and I have to shut up and allow myself to be talked to death. Hundreds of questions come pouring in all at once. Such has been my experience in every country town I have so far visited.

"Where is Portland?" is asked as soon as I open my mouth. Of course everybody likes to hear of a newly-found town (we ourselves are interested in anything that is new to us); and my story about Portland and Oregon is certainly very interesting to these people, who never heard that such a race as the Oregonians inhabit any portion of the known globe.

The business people whom I have conversed with, when time would allow in my rapid journey eastward, of course are more enlightened. They admit having heard of Portland, but imagine it to be a very low-rate place, which, in course of time, may become a city of importance, like unto Tacoma or Seattle.

People of Portland, this is no fabrication. It is a true representation of facts. These good, honest, hard-working sons of American soil know nothing of our lovely city or country; and were you to spend $100,000 in advertising yourselves to the eastern world not one cent of it would be ill-spent. It would be but purchasing the plant that would yield you a hundred fold.

Puget Sound deserves credit for its enterprise. The vast territory that I have already gone through is well posted (doubtless too much so) on the advantages the Sound affords, and I contemplate having hard work as I go marching along, to convince the people that all they have heard about the Sound territory is insignificant as compared with what we offer them in the grand and glorious state of Oregon. I would meekly, as your humble servant, advise you to more than double the effort you have already made to place yourselves in the front rank and declare yourselves to be, as you are, second to no country under the canopy of heaven.

W. MOOREHEAD.

GOLDSTEIN BEFORES PROGRESS.

The following was then read from Agent Goldstein. It gives a vivid insight into the status of boomland:

LOS ANGELES (Sunday), May 6.

Wallace Struble, Secretary O. I. B.—Dear Sir: I have just come in from San Pedro today. Yesterday I was at Pasadena. I find all the towns, including Los Angeles, very quiet. The "boom" virtually is burst, although there is a great amount of fine building going on. I hope my work is beginning to tell, as I am kept quite busy all the time talking Oregon and her wonderful resources. Living is very high. In fact, everything is dearer here than in any other place in America. I am working all the towns surrounding here. Next week I leave for Santa Barbara, San Bernardino, San Diego, and other places. San Francisco is the field to work in. Every one goes there. All the tourists and immigrants have stopped coming here. Business is very quiet. Rents are high. It would amaze some of our wealthy Oregonians to make a trip to this part of the country and see the enterprise in regard to building. Portland land-owners could well afford to spend a few millions for improvements, for the returns would be great. I think rent is high in Portland. The stores in Dave Monnastes's block on First street, renting for $150 per month, would bring here in a similar location not less than $350. In Pasadena, a town that does not do any more business than East Portland, the rent of such stores would be $200 to $250. The average rent for lodging-house rooms brings the owner of the building $10 per month supply. Cottages that we get $20 to $25 for rent here for from $40 to $50. These are facts. I have gone personally and made inquiries.

Los Angeles deserves a great deal of credit for the elegant buildings being put up. It seems to be an ordinance here that all sidewalks must be concrete or stone. This city and Pasadena have miles of the most beautiful sidewalks in the country. Yesterday, while I was at Pasadena, they had a town lot sale by Los Angeles real estate dealers. A great deal of money was spent for advertising, free lunch, etc., but the "boom" is burst. The only sale made was eight lots at $200 each. Climate has taken a tumble. The banks here have ceased loaning money on outside property, as they find it a detriment to the city. They have gone too far with it, and now feel the ill effects.

The land owners do not take kindly to my coming, as nothing could affect them so much as advertisement of our state. The usual cry they give me is "too much rain," but I stand them all off with "Oregon against the world." I expect the next objective point of the real estate dealers will be Portland. M. B. GOLDSTEIN.

P. S. The best and finest advertising scheme that we could get would be to have 100,000 copies of illustrated Portland and surroundings. The few copies I have had of THE NEW YEAR'S OREGONIAN have done more good than any other advertising matter. People are perfectly astonished to see what a beautiful and large city we have, and they want the pictures. I always carry the pictorial OREGONIAN with me and show to people who want to invest somewhere. Everything goes by illustrations now-a-days. We should also have a lot of tin folder boxes made to put folders in for hotels, stations and various other places. G.

The request of C. B. Richard & Co., New York, agents of the Hamburg-Bremen steamship line, for German and Scandinavian Oregon literature was referred to printing committee.

Messrs. R. L. Polk & Company were given a vote of thanks for a copy of the city directory for 1888, presented by them to the board.

Wells, Fargo & Company were also voted the thanks of the board for their courtesy in granting frank for the board's printed matter and exhibits over their express lines.

G. T. Huppertz, clerk of the board, was instructed to continue the work of soliciting additional subscriptions to the advertising fund. Mr. Huppertz will also complete the Pioneer-Press list of subscribers, assisted by Mr. Wood. Adjourned.

NOTES.

J. M. Weaver and party of Pennsylvanians, arrived from the Keystone state on Tuesday.

The immigration rooms and building have been newly painted and cleaned and now present a tasty appearance.

The board has distributed to date 100,000 copies of the folder, and copies are being sent out daily to the number of 10,000.

Inquiries are being received daily from Southern California, Puget Sound and the Middle West in response to the work of the board's agents.

Rev. F. J. Strayer is now organizing a large excursion from Kremis, Pa., to Western Oregon. The company will leave Pennsylvania this week.

S. Julius Mayer recently returned from Eastern Oregon, reports a very large immigration to that section. He was informed by a Union Pacific official that that railway has transportation engaged ahead for 140,000 people to the Northwest this season.

THE CATHOLIC VESTMENTS.

What They Signify—The Different Colors Used by the Clergymen.

The vestments worn by the Roman Catholic clergy in the celebration of the sacred rites of that church are many, and each garment has a special and spiritual meaning. The vestments worn here in America to-day are just the same in shape, form and number as those used in the churches of the far East—in Asia Minor, Armenia, and Khurdistan, &c.

The cassock is a black robe reaching to the ground, and is an emblem of the seamless garment worn by Christ. It is generally of black material. The bishop's cassock is of purple, the cardinal's red, and the Pope's white. In Catholic countries it is publicly worn, but in this country it is generally dispensed with in the streets, except by the Christian brothers. The beretta is the three-cornered cap worn by the clergy at almost all the sacred services except the celebration of mass. The color is always black, except in the case of cardinals, who wear a red beretta. The surplice is a white garment coming down only to the hips. It is used by acolytes, those in minor orders, and by the clergy themselves when engaged in the ordinary services of the church, the mass always excepted.

When priest or bishop is about to celebrate the mass he first washes his fingers and then takes up the amice, a piece of white linen about a half yard square and places it over his shoulders.

It recalls the cloth with which the Jews covered the head of the Savior on the night before he suffered, saying, "Prophesy unto us O Christ, who is he that struck thee?" The alb is a long garment of white linen reaching to the ground. It signifies the spotless purity of soul which the celebrant should carry to the altar, and it recalls the marking garment with which King Herod clothed the Savior when he sent him back to Pilate. The alb is fastened with a girdle or cincture, which represents the one worn by Christ, who, after the Jewish fashion of the time, bound his clothes with a girdle. The cincture is also an emblem of the rope with which the Savior was bound to the pillar and scourged.

The maniple, which is of the same texture as the chasuble or outer garment, is worn on the left arm. In the early ages of the church and in the warm countries of the East the priests carried a little cloth on the left arm as a handkerchief, and at length it became from custom part of the sacred vestments. When a bishop is celebrating mass he removes the maniple from the arm just before the offertory, or the principal portion of the sacrifice. The stole, which is the next garment put on when vesting for the celebration of the mass, is a long narrow band enlarged at either end. It is placed on the neck, crossed over the breast and fastened by the girdle. Bishops do not cross the stole. It is a sign of spiritual power and authority, and for that reason a priest never administers one of the sacraments without the stole; and the bishop, when administering holy orders, places it on the neck of the postulant as a badge of spiritual authority.

The chasuble is the last or outer garment. Put over the head, it hangs down before and behind. On the back is the figure of a cross to remind the people of the cross of Calvary, and in front is a symbol of the pillar to which Christ was bound and scourged. It represents the purple robe of derision with which the Roman soldiers clothed Christ.

The garments and ornaments worn by bishops are more numerous than those used by priests. The sandals which were worn in olden times have been dispensed with. A veil is placed on the knees coming up to the breast, the purpose of which is that the bishop may place his hands upon it so as not to soil the vestments. He wears a cross on his neck—the pectoral cross—hanging from his neck. Encased in the cross are always some sacred relics. In putting it on or taking it off he always kisses it to show his love and reverence for the cross of Christ. After the alb he puts on the tunic and then the dalmatica. The surplice is worn by the inferior clergy, the tunic by the sub-deacon, the dalmatica by the deacon, the chasuble by the priest, but the bishop wears all to show that he has power over all the clergy. The bishop next puts on the gloves to signify the prudence and discretion he should use in the exercise of his episcopal powers. After the chasuble is put on the mitre is placed on his head by a deacon. This he must remove when he approaches the altar to say mass. The tiara worn by the pope has also to be removed when he celebrates mass. Next comes the ring, emblematic of Christ's espousal with the church. The pastoral staff is the emblem of apostolic authority. The pope, though he is bishop of Rome, has no crosier, because its first bishop, St. Peter, history says, gave his crosier to another to work miracles, and he never used one after that.

The pallium is a garment worn only by archbishops, primates and patriarchs during divine service. It goes around the neck and shoulders. It is always made of the wool of lambs blessed in St. Agnes's Church in Rome.

The colors used in the vestments at different times of the year are five in number—white, black, red, green and violet. White is used on all joyous festivals, the great feasts of the Redeemer, the Virgin Mary, and the eminent confessors of the church. Black is the color of death and at funerals and masses for the dead on the Good Friday it is the color used. In case of a child who dies before the age of committing sin and when a mass is said for it, white is the color worn. Red is used on all the feasts of the martyrs who shed their blood for the faith. It is also worn on Pentecost Sunday in memory of the fiery tongues with which the Holy Ghost descended on the apostles. On all Sundays and ferias pertaining to the Holy Ghost green is used, except in the case of Pentecost. It is symbolic of the green which covers the earth, and the various plants, herbs, &c., that are the nourishing principle of all life as the Holy Ghost is the principle of all our good thoughts and actions and gives everlasting and perpetual youth to the church. Violet is the penitential color, being nearest the color of ashes, and is used during Lent and Advent.

THE HOLLADAY PROPERTY.

Some Facts About the Present Suit Not Hitherto Published.

Statement of the Arrangement to Protect Certain Creditors and How Other Creditors Broke In—Joe's Recent Refusal.

When it was announced a few weeks ago that the stock in the Oregon Real Estate Association owned by the estate of Ben Holladay had been ordered sold to pay judgments, it was thought that the end of this celebrated case was approaching rapidly, but the request of Joe Holladay to have the sale postponed, and his refusal to accept the terms under which his request would be granted, reopens it, as it were. THE OREGONIAN has gone to some pains to obtain the exact facts in regard to the status of the claims, and as to whether there is any movement to chisel Ben Holladay's heirs out of what rightfully belongs to them. Investigation shows that it is simply the old story of a creditor selling the property of a debtor. The only property that can be sold by the court is the shares of stock, for that is all the court has in hand. If further delay is desired by Joe Holladay or the estate, the way is clear, as indicated in the creditors' letter published Wednesday. Here is the history told as briefly as possible:

Soon after Ben Holladay's return to Oregon George C. Hickox, brought his suit in the United States circuit court to declare the conveyances from Ben to Joe Holladay fraudulent as to creditors and the court so decided. The state supreme court in the private suit between the brothers afterward held the conveyances to be mortgages only, and rendered their decree in July, 1886, allowing Ben ninety days to redeem the property from a claim of Joe's amounting to $315,492 46. By a private agreement of trust executed about July 10, 1888, Joe extended the time of redemption three years and was made with George Weidler co-receiver of the property during this time or until the redemption if made within this period.

Ben and Mrs. Holladay by the same agreement increased Joe's mortgage lien to $346,696 46, with interest at 6 per cent. per annum and stipulated that the property should be sold at the end of three years under the decree unless the debt was paid in the meantime. In the suit between the brothers Messrs. Strong & Strong and Richard Williams had acted for Joe, and, of course, must look to him for payment. Messrs. Dolph, Bellinger, Mallory & Simon, and Messrs. Williams, Durham & Thompson had acted for Ben, and it is understood under an agreement compelling them to defend all collateral suits to the end of the litigation and upon a contingent fee aggregating $100,000. Messrs. Dolph, Bellinger, Mallory & Simon also represented (by consent of Ben) certain of his largest New York creditors, notably August Belmont, the Mutual Life Insurance Company and S. L. M. Barlow, who held judgments as follows: Belmont, $154,151 97; Mutual Life, $35,038 60; Barlow, about $15,000. These creditors and attorneys of this same agreement procured a release from Joe of any liens on certain property, the most important of which was and is the 10,000 shares of stock of the Oregon Real Estate Company, this corporation being the owner of the East Portland Holladay addition real estate.

This property (that is the shares of stock) was conveyed by Ben and Mrs. Holladay to Geo. Weidler as trustee for these attorneys and creditors with power to sell the same at any time and apply the proceeds upon these preferred debts, in consideration of which the creditors so preferred scaled down their claims: Belmont $41,000, the attorneys to an aggregate of $90,000, the Mutual Life to $30,000, Barlow to $5200, provided the claims be paid on or before the expiration of the three years from July 1888, otherwise to revert to the original amounts.

A group of New York creditors, generally called here the Bogart claims, and George Hickox and D. P. Thompson attacked this agreement on the ground that it was a fraud upon the general creditors and hindered and delayed them three years by putting the property in the hands of receivers, and was therefore a void agreement as to creditors not parties to it. This position was not sustained by the supreme court of Oregon and the Bogart suit upon which the sale is to be had was then begun in the United States circuit court on the ground that the stock in the hands of George Weidler was in his hands expressly as a private trustee and not as receiver, therefore not protected by the receivership of the state court; and further, that it was personal property (shares of stock) and the general creditors might by their suit in equity set aside the preferences and secure an equitable lien themselves upon the stock.

This suit was begun October 7, 1886, and has been delayed at the solicitation of the trustee, George W. Weidler, and of Ben Holladay, to permit a sale to be made, but none has been effected. Finally the Bogart people refused to consent to further delay, and procured an order transferring the stock from Mr. Weidler, trustee, to Mr. Gammans, receiver in the suit. Upon this sequestration of the stock by the court, numerous creditors intervened in the suit who could not otherwise have come into the federal court until now. This suit practically contains all of the creditors holding judgments against Ben Holladay, except Joe. The claims here represented amount to nearly $350,000. The Bogart group of claims is only about $34,000 of this. In addition to this $350,000, Joe's claims are about $400,000, increasing at the rate of $20,000 a year. The Bogart people are the plaintiffs in the suit and are unwilling to grant any more concessions, especially as they allege that Joe Holladay could pay off their small claim if he was willing to subordinate some of his own large interests in the state. On the other hand, Holladay claims he cannot raise the necessary funds.

And this finishes up all there is to say in the matter.

CORRALLED IN THE POOL.

Cords and Cords of Salmon at the Clackamas Hatchery.

The members of the fish commission were all in the city yesterday, Mr. Reed having come down from the hatchery, Mr. Campbell from The Dalles and Mr. Thompson from San Francisco.

Mr. Reed reports a very large number of salmon in the pool at the hatchery. At night he says that they crowd up against the rack, placed to prevent them from ascending the river, in such numbers that one could almost walk across the river on their backs. It requires great diligence on the part of himself and the two watchmen employed to prevent fishermen from sweeping their nets through the pool.

The men who fish in the river below the pool look with longing eyes on the fish which have escaped their nets, and are corralled in the pool at the hatchery and they say the commissioners have no rights to put a rack across the river, and threaten to tear it out, and to fish out the pool and all that sort of thing.

The attention of these greedy persons is called to section 1950 of Hill's Annotated Code, where it will be found that the law in regard to the placing of dams or other obstructions across streams does not apply to persons or corporations duly organized for the purpose of propagating salmon or other fish in any of the streams of this state. Any one interfering with the rack or the fish confined at the hatchery will lay themselves liable to punishment, but this would not restore the fish on which the stocking of the river depends, therefore the commissioners must exercise the utmost vigilance to see that no greedy, evil-minded person meddles with their fish.

THE QUALITY OF HONESTY.

The Boston Herald says that "the extent to which Roscoe Conkling is eulogized as an incorruptible man implies that incorruptibility is an unusual virtue," and proceeds to argue that Conkling was "not singular in being honest. He was a representative American rather. There was no need, therefore, of dwelling with emphasis upon Roscoe Conkling's honesty. His honesty was assumed to be as much a matter of course as his existence. Honesty is the native attribute of men whom the American people admire, and the state of affairs is abnormal when it is otherwise with them."

On the other hand Ingersoll makes honesty, honor and veracity the shining traits of Conkling, and evidently believes that among politicians Conkling was honorable and truthful to a remarkable degree. If the Boston Herald means by honesty merely that every day commercial honesty, which, in obedience to self-interest, is respected by the mass of men who have anything at stake, it is correct in saying that there was no need in dwelling with emphasis upon the honesty of Conkling, for that was to be assumed as the native attribute of public men in America. But if we mean by honesty something more than pecuniary integrity; if we mean intellectual and moral honesty of conviction and courage in action, joined to a high sense of personal honor which is not satisfied with a legal vindication before the courts but always demands a trial by conscience, then Conkling was an exceptionally honest man.

To illustrate: Mr. Conkling and Mr. Edmunds served in the senate together from 1867 to 1881; they were both men of distinguished legal acquirements and Conkling even more than Edmunds was dependent upon his profession. At the end of Conkling's senatorial career he had [illegible] nothing but his reputation to show for his years of service, while Edmunds had become a rich man. The difference of results was due to the difference in the men. Mr. Edmunds and Mr. Conkling were equally incorruptible men in the sense of commercial integrity and pecuniary honor. You could not bribe either of them. If either of them owed a dollar he would pay "on the nail," but with this difference—Mr. Edmunds would first ask himself whether any legal obligation existed, and Conkling would go beyond this and inquire whether he had a clear moral as well as legal defense for his deed. Mr. Edmunds would not do anything as a senator which he had not a plausible right to do in law, but Mr. Conkling would do nothing as a senator that conflicted with his implied moral obligations as a senator, no matter if he could plead a good defense under the letter of the law. That is, he was more concerned in the spirit of his life as a senator than the mere formal letter of it. The result was that while in the beginning of their careers in the senate both had many cases offered them, Conkling turned away a great many clients that Edmunds kept, because Conkling was more fastidious in his construction of his official disabilities as senator to act as attorney than was Edmunds. So Conkling declined to be attorney to the great corporations like the Pacific railroads, etc., and remained poor until he left the senate, while Edmunds increased his clientage among corporations in litigation with the government, so rapidly that he is to-day one of the rich men of the senate.

It is clear, therefore, that Mr. Conkling not only does not suffer by comparison with one of the most austere and incorruptible men in American politics, but he actually surpassed him in an almost morbid sensibility to the expressed and implied obligations of his position as United States senator. But when we leave the arctic atmosphere of austere legal virtue, in which moves Mr. Edmunds, and compare Mr. Conkling with the great mass of leading lawyers and politicians in full and active practice, whether in the United States senate or outside of it, Mr. Conkling, in stern intellectual and moral integrity of thought and action, towers up like Saul among the prophets, and Ingersoll does well to speak of his absolute, unstained honesty as the rare and shining quality of Conkling's character.

An honest man in the sense that Conkling was honest, clear up to the glittering peak of high moral honor, is a very rare person, and is what the poet meant by "the noblest work of God." The average lawyer is too ambitious, the average politician too selfish to be "Conkling honest." The lawyer learns from his books and his practice to be satisfied with getting a verdict in the court of law without trying his case in the court of his conscience. That was Tilden, who had no more ingrained reverence for honesty than Tweed, but Tilden always ascertained what the law was and took good care to keep within it in all his chicanery as a railway wrecker and political trickster, while Tweed robbed in daylight and in defiance of law, as careless and indifferent to consequences as a Bedouin Arab of the desert. And Tilden is not the only eminent American, living or dead, who, avoiding any open and indefensible collision with the law, has yet utterly failed to stand with Roscoe Conkling on the highest plane of public and private honesty and moral honor.

SHAMEFUL SUBSERVIENCY.

The governor of New York has vetoed the high license bill recently passed by the legislature of that state. It is not surprising that he has done so. Gov. Hill is one of the worst of the groveling sort of politicians. He has hoped to advance his own political fortunes and strengthen his party by this act of subserviency to the liquor power.

An immoral politician is necessarily a short-sighted one. The first results of this action, may, indeed, be the re-election of Gov. Hill and a temporary triumph of his party in the state; but the ultimate results will be his own condemnation and the overthrow of his party. Owing to the pressure of partisanship, judgment may not at once overtake this immoral action, but it will surely come, and with force accelerated by delay. This year the liquor men may all vote the democratic ticket in New York, but the time will soon come when their entire vote will not save the democratic party.

Last year the legislature of New York passed a high license bill. It was vetoed by Gov. Hill. The bill contained features to which plausible objections could be made, and the governor took advantage of this fact. This year a new bill was offered, drawn with great care expressly to meet the objections stated in the governor's veto of last year. In framing a new bill the message was closely followed as a guide, with the express design of escaping the objections which the governor had formerly presented. The bill was made to conform in every respect with the views which Gov. Hill had expressed in his public documents on excise legislation; it contained all the features he had deemed essential, and was wholly within the lines he had prescribed. Yet this bill is now vetoed also.

Delegations from the Citizens' Committee on High License from the city of New York, from the Young Men's Democratic Club of the city, from the Church Temperance Society and from the Society for Prevention of Crime, waited upon the governor and urged him to sign the bill. It was shown that the bill was so framed that its burdens would fall and its benefits apply equally to every part of the state, thus obviating the governor's objection that the bill of 1887 operated "solely upon the two great democratic constituencies of the state"—New York City and Brooklyn—"while republican cities and constituencies were exempted from its burdens." The fees prescribed were graded in accordance with the governor's own suggestions, and were made uniform and applicable to the whole state alike. Statistics were presented to the governor from other states, showing the excellent results of the system embodied in this bill. Col. Watson, a well-known democrat and lawyer of New York, said: "We have drawn a law as suggested by you at the hearing a year ago. It has been made a political question by the legislature, but my committee instructed me not to touch upon the political side of the matter at all. It should not be a political question, and by signing this bill you may destroy the political side entirely and put both parties on the same high ground." Oliver P. Buell, speaking for the Young Men's Democratic Club of New York, said: "As a partisan I want to speak against the action of the democrats in the assembly who have put the party on record against this bill. These gentlemen by combined action have placed the democratic party as the irrevocable ally of the rum traffic and the enemy of license measures. If this bill does not receive the signature of your honor it is utterly impossible to draw a bill that will receive the signature of the executive. I never admired General Grant as a politican any more than you, governor, but when he vetoed the Bland silver bill he proved himself to be a statesman and a leader. Every leader at times has to run contrary to the wishes of his party. Do you suppose that the democratic party will lose a single vote if you sign this bill?"

To these appeals the representatives of the liquor men answered that if the governor should approve the bill it would cost the party tens of thousands of votes. Their counsels prevailed, and he vetoed it.

Gov. Hill is already so smirched by the investigation of his political corruptions that he can have no political future that will in any way honor him. He therefore is of little account. But the consequences to his party of placing it in opposition to fair taxation and regulation of the liquor traffic will be great and enduring. This action will just as surely overthrow the democratic party in New York as those forces continue in operation that, in the long run, make decency and righteousness prevail.

DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL CONVENTIONS

It will be fifty-seven years next September since the first national nominating convention was held in the United States. It was called by the anti-Masons and met at Baltimore. Wm. Wirt was nominated for president and Amos Ellmaker for vice-president. Prior to that time all the political parties selected their candidates in an informal sort of a way. Members of congress caucused in Washington, and state legislatures declared for candidates. In 1824 the democrats in congress almost unanimously nominated Wm. H. Crawford, of Georgia, for president—a man who perished before his time and lost the legitimate fruits of his personal ability and popularity by his intemperate habits, which finally brought him to alcoholic dementia and the grave.

The democratic national convention meets at St. Louis June 5, less than a month from this date and two weeks in advance of the republican nominating convention. The democrats were sensible in fixing upon a date earlier than that of the republican convention, because the republican convention cannot possibly make a nomination that will change the determination of the democracy to renominate Cleveland. Cleveland's renomination was long ago seen to be inevitable, no matter what he did or omitted to do. The democracy know that to refuse Cleveland a renomination would be equivalent to confessing to the people that the first democratic administration since March, 1861, had proved so indifferent and unsatisfactory that the party could not afford to indorse its record by the renomination of its executive. Cleveland long ago saw that the party could not afford to impeach his administration by refusing him a renomination, and he has governed himself accordingly. He knew he was the democratic elephant; he had cost too much money to be killed; he was dangerous to turn loose, and although an expensive luxury, neither useful nor ornamental, he must be fed and watered by the party at enormous expense until there was opportunity to trade or raffle him off for a more useful party hack.

The first democratic national convention met at Baltimore May 12, 1832, and nominated Andrew Jackson. The following shows the dates of the subsequent democratic national conventions, the cities in which they were held and the names of the candidates placed in the field:

1835—May 20.	Baltimore.	Martin Van Buren.
1840—May 5.	Baltimore.	Martin Van Buren.
1844—May 27.	Baltimore.	James K. Polk.
1848—May 22.	Baltimore.	Louis Cass.
1852—June 1.	Baltimore.	Franklin Pierce.
1856—June 2.	Cincinnati.	James Buchanan.
1860—Apr. 23.	Charleston.	[No nomination.]
1860—June 18.	Baltimore.	S. A. Douglas.
1860—June 23.	Baltimore.	J. C. Breckinridge.
1864—Aug. 29.	Chicago.	Geo. B McClellan.
1868—July 4.	New York.	Horatio Seymour.
1872—July 9.	Baltimore.	Horace Greeley.
1876—June 27.	St. Louis.	Samuel J. Tilden.
1880—June 2.	Cincinnati.	W. S. Hancock.
1884—July 8.	Chicago.	Grover Cleveland.

In the fifty-six years that have elapsed since the assembling of the first national nominating convention in 1832, the democracy have elected their candidates six times; Andrew Jackson in 1832; Martin Van Buren in 1836; James K. Polk in 1844; Franklin Pierce in 1852; James Buchanan in 1856 and Grover Cleveland in 1884.

THE GREATEST ABUSE OF PROTECTION.

Discussion of the tariff bill continues in the house. Many days have been given to "set speeches," and many more will be. Speech-making does not, however, advance the business. Yet it seems to be an accepted fact that a certain amount of time must be given to speech-making; and then will begin the real work of considering the bill, section by section.

When the section relating to sugar is reached the republicans will move to put that article on the free list, and on the call will vote solidly for the proposition. But the democrats will stand solidly against it. Why?

There are two reasons, which are so well put by the Omaha Republican that we reproduce that paper's statement of them: "The small amount of sugar produced in this country is chiefly produced in one Southern state, and the Mills bill is a Southern measure. That is one reason. The other is that the democratic leaders of Louisiana, who have just demonstrated their ability to produce for their candidates a majority larger than the total voting population of the state, fix the sugar tariff as the price for the electoral votes of that state. The South, of course, stands by Louisiana in her demand, because she is part of that 'solid' section of the Union, and the Northern democratic members because they are dough faces and are wholly subservient, as during the last thirty years, to Southern politics."

These are the reasons why an unjust and oppressive duty is still to be kept on sugar, taxing the people of the whole United States for protection of a few democratic free-trade planters. No abuse of protection can compare with it.

The Irish nationalists declare that they will not regard the pope's order to suspend boycotting and the plan of campaign. "Perhaps," says the Milwaukee Sentinel, "the pope's order meant no more than that of Mr. Cleveland forbidding federal officeholders to do political work."

Of our 50,156,000 inhabitants in 1880, 6,680,000 were born in foreign countries. More than 3,000,000 arrived between 1841 and 1880, of whom 1,056,000 were Irish and 1,002,000 were Germans. It is probable that in the whole history of mankind there has been no exodus of people from any country proportional to the exodus from Ireland during the last fifty years. No more eloquent tale of the misrule of a country could be told. Of the Irish who come to America 45 per cent. settle in the large cities; of the Germans 40 per cent.; of the English and Scotch 30 per cent. In the New England states, New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, in 1880, nearly one-half the population was living in cities, and in Massachusetts two-thirds.

The Scotchmen who put their money into American cattle companies a few years ago are sorry. Several of these companies have for some years paid no dividends. In 1886 only one paid a dividend. "There are at present," says the Economist, "nine companies, with a paid-up capital of £3,610,000, upon the ordinary portion of which no dividends were distributed in 1887. Scotch investors, we should think, have never touched a more unsatisfactory class of enterprises." A statement prepared by a firm of stock brokers in Edinburgh shows that at the end of 1887 six of the nine companies carried forward debit balances amounting in all to £330,614. The chief cause of their losses has been the very low price of range cattle fixed by the Chicago ring, which at the same time compels consumers to pay the old prices for beef.

The reason why the bill of Dr. Simmons for medical services rendered to the late Samuel J. Tilden is so great is found in the fact that the doctor was constantly retained by Tilden as medical adviser during eight years, and Tilden's demands were so exacting that the physician could not attend to a general practice. For this service he thinks the sum claimed ($145,000) not too large. Tilden, he says, never paid him anything, yet required his continual professional attendance.

Gen. George Dibrell, whose death on the 9th inst. is announced, was a Confederate brigadier, and after the war was for ten years member of congress from the Third Tennessee district, retiring with the forty-ninth congress and declining to be a candidate for re-election.

THE RECORD OF VOORHEES.

The Documents Found in his Office—Gen. Carrington's Caustic Letter in Reply to a Request for a "Denial."

A Minneapolis special of May 2, says: Apropos the fact that Senator Voorhees has vehemently denied the charges of treason against the government during the war of the rebellion preferred by Senator Ingalls in his speech in the senate the following will be found of general interest. It is taken from the Memphis Bulletin of September 2, 1864. Certain documents had been found in Senator Voorhees' law office, and he wrote to Gen. Henry B. Carrington, who was evidently connected in some way with the discovery of the documents, demanding a retraction. The following is a synopsis of Carrington's reply:

D. W. Voorhees: You ask me to publish a retraction of the charge that treasonable documents had been found in your office and ask me to put the facts before the people in their true light. I never published or caused to be published the charges. The facts are these: The papers referred to are 142 copies of the ritual of the "O. A. K.," a treasonable organization aiming to overthrow the government of the United States, of which you are a member. The gentleman who found "these papers" told me that they were found in your office. The following are some of the "circumstances" that led me to suppose that they were correct: The ritual had been issued in the autumn of 1863. Your congressional documents were found in the office where "these papers" were found. The correspondence of Senator Wall of New Jersey, under his frank, indorsing the proposition to furnish you with 40,000 stand of Garibaldi rifles just imported, "for which he could vouch," was in the office where the papers were found. The correspondence of C. L. Vallandigham from Windsor, Canada West, assuring you "our people will fight," and that "he is ready," and fixing a point "on the Lima road" at which to meet you" was in the office where these papers were found. The correspondence of Joseph Restine, auditor of state, declaring that "he would like to see all democrats unite in open and bold resistance to all attempts to keep oars a united people by 'force of steel,'" and that "this was a war against democracy," was in the office where these papers were found. The correspondence of J. Hardesty, who "wants you to have that 100,000 men ready, as we don't know how soon we shall need them," was in the office where this ritual was found. The correspondence of J. J. Bingham, who asks you "if you think the South has resources enough to keep the Union forces at bay?" and says that you "must leave sources of information which he has not," was in the office where these papers were found. These are some of "the circumstances." And yet I cheerfully accept your denial, and so respond, as you request, "that the people may know the truth."

HENRY B. CARRINGTON.

Was Loaded for Them All.

Indianapolis Journal.

It was noticeable that when Senator Ingalls was flaying Senator Voorhees in the senate the other day, none of Voorhees's friends came to his relief. It is said that Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky, was about to interrupt the sharp-tongued senator from Kansas, when a message from a friend called him to the cloakroom and closed his mouth. He was informed that Senator Ingalls had investigated his record and carried in his pockets some certified copies of compromising documents that would have blasted Blackburn's reputation, if made public. So he concluded not to monkey with the buzz saw. Senator Turpie, from Indiana, was on the point of taking up the cudgel in his colleague's behalf, but some friend informed him that Mr. Ingalls was loaded for him, too, and had copies of documents that proved Turpie's connection with the Knights of the Golden Circle and exposed him as one of the rankest copperheads in the land. So he concluded to keep silent. Senator Vest, of Missouri, has a little itching to come to Voorhees's rescue, but somebody told him that Mr. Ingalls knew his record, and was ready to make it public, so he kept still. There was the most remarkable stillness on the part of democrats who are usually nothing if not noisy, that the senate has seen for many years. What a striking commentary on the character and record of the democratic party, that its leaders in the senate had to keep quiet while one of their number was being held to the rack, for fear that if they opened their mouths their own record would be shown to the world in all its hideous and shameful colors.

They Understood Grant.

New York Times.

To Southern soldiers must be accorded the credit of being among the foremost to check that singular notion which prevailed in some parts of the North toward the close of the war, and soon after it, of belittling the military qualities of Gen. Grant. They were quick to understand the discredit implied in the theory that they had been overcome by a man of only ordinary efficiency. The Confederacy might well recognize Grant's ability—"great will I call him, for he conquered me."

Sherman and Harrison are certainly malevolent enough, but too cold, metallic and clammy. Ingalls is too hot and quick-on-trigger. Evarts is too tedious. Gresham is too tall. Stanford is too rich. Blaine is just "a broth of a boy," who can blow hot and cold with the same breath, and skin the cat, and leap the banners, and plunge through the balloons, and march down ter der footlights, fire off two hoss-pistols and die like a son of a gun.

How Sullivan was Saved.

BOSTON, May 10.—Beckwith, private secretary to Horace Phillips, backer of John L. Sullivan, has made a statement that Phillips said to him, in the Mona house at London, that he had to bribe Baldock, referee in the Sullivan and Mitchel fight, to declare the fight a draw, and if he had not done so Sullivan would have lost the fight in the next three rounds.

POSTAGE PREPAID.

The Progress Made in Less Than Half a Century.

Origin of the Idea in 1653—Introduction of the System in England in 1840—What the First Stamp Looked Like.

How many letter-writers, when they lick the back of the portrait of the Father of his Country before ornamenting a corner of the envelope with it, realize that they are taking the initial step in the enjoyment of a privilege which their grandfathers did not possess? asks a writer in the New York World. So thick and fast come the advancing steps of civilization, the march of progress is such a "company front" movement, that the labor-saving, time-annihilating, ease and comfort-bringing innovation of yesterday is the staid, accepted, commonplace fact of to-day.

Thus it is with the prepaid postal system. The children who wondered at the first postage-stamp are nearly all in the land of the living yet to tell the wonderful story. But they do not tell it. They have forgotten all about it. To the Rev. Rowland Hill of London, who was a statesman as well as a great diving, should be given the credit for the introduction of an idea which was equal in its day and generation to the most startling invention of Edison.

It was in 1840—not long ago, to be sure—that the old system of leaving the postage on your missives to be paid by the receiver was abolished in England and the prepaying postage-stamp made its first bow to the public. It bore about as much resemblance or affinity to the beautiful and artistic Jubilee series issued last summer by the British government as George Stephenson's first locomotive bears to the iron steeds of the railroads of to-day.

ORIGIN OF THE IDEA.

The idea of prepaid or stamped paper originated in the brain of M. de Velayer, who in 1653, in the reign of Louis XIV, established a private penny post, placing boxes at the doors of the streets of Paris for the reception of letters, which were franked by pasting bands about them. These [illegible] could be bought," says M. Piron, in a pamphlet published in 1838, "at the palace, at the turn-tables of the convents and from the porters of colleges." But the idea died apparently with its originator, not to be revivified till in 1837 Rowland Hill obtained the passage by parliament of a bill which proposed the prepayment of postage by means of stamped envelopes.

Wm. Mulready obtained the contract for engraving the envelope in 1840, and his design was unique and perhaps prettier and more tasteful than any following issue of Great Britain. It had the merit of symbolism, too. It covered the whole upper half and ends of the envelope, leaving only space enough for the address, like postal cards of to-day. There was an ideal portrait of Britannia sending out angelic messengers to the nations of the earth, while female figures were seen reading letters. Within a year this unwieldy device was discarded for a simpler conceit, which could be pasted or gummed to an ordinary envelope. These stamps were printed in sheets, and were separated by cutting. Then some one lost to fame thought of a way to gum them in the sheets ready for use, and afterward another unsung benefactor of the race invented the perforating machine, which is still used, so that no scissors were needed to separate the stamps.

Since 1840 the British government has issued a dozen series of stamps, renowned among philatelists as the least attractive in the whole 9000 varieties of postage stamps that have been printed in these forty-eight years. All the British stamps bear the dindemed head of Queen Victoria, and it may be said in passing that there are fifty-five colonies and provinces of the dominion on which the mother-state which have issued postage stamps bearing the portrait of Queen Victoria.

THE UNITED STATES.

But this boasted land of progress did not take up the new-fangled notion of our British cousins [illegible] after Switzerland, and even Brazil had adopted it. J. Walter Scott, who has made a small fortune in the business of collecting the postage stamps of all nations and selling them to collectors, and who has lately retired from business, has in his possession a bill made out by J. Lorimer Graham, who was postmaster of New York city prior to the introduction of postage stamps, against a merchant for postage due on mail addressed by him to his customers, and which he had contracted to pay in advance. There are now some 300 stamp-issuing countries, and the prepaid postal service is universal.

There is no amusement so instructive for a youthful mind as that of stamp collecting. The stamps form a splendid kindergarten. The collectors curiosity is stimulated to inquire into the reasons of the various designs and changes, and he is led to investigate the history, manner and customs of the stamp issuing countries, so that educators have largely accepted the pastime of collecting stamps as a help in these branches.

The late Mrs. Whiting of this city, adopted the "fad" as a part of her curriculum, and Mr. Scott says that in the past twenty-five years he has numbered among his customers many of the great of this country and Europe, who have bought liberally of the letter franking adhesions for their children, grandchildren, nephews and nieces, while not a few of them have derived much personal enjoyment from the study of philately.

The Danger of Being a Human Being.

Charles Dudley Warner in Harper's.

Heredity is a puzzle. It seems to be easier in this world to inherit bad qualities and traits than good, but both sorts make such leaps and jumps, and are so inclined to go off on collateral lines, that the succession is difficult to calculate. The race is linked together in a curious tangle, so that it is almost impossible to fix the responsibility. Defects or vices or virtues will not always go in a straight line. The children of deaf-mutes, for example, are not apt to be deaf-mutes, but the cousins of those children may be deaf-mutes, showing, it is said, that some remote ancestor of both had some mental or physical defect, which has been transmitted to his posterity, though not in the form in which he was afflicted. In most cases we cannot do anything about it; the older our civilization becomes the more complicated and intricate are our relations, so that it has already become a dangerous business to be a human being at all. It is not always certain that if a man eats sour grapes his children's teeth will be set on edge, but the effect of the sour grape diet may skip a generation or two, or appear in a collateral line. We try to study this problem in our asylums and prisons, and we get a great many interesting facts, but they are too conflicting to guide legislation. The difficulty is to relieve a person of responsibility for the sins of his ancestors without relieving him of responsibility for his own sins.

Protzman to the Taxpayers.

TO THE TAXPAYERS OF MULTNOMAH COUNTY:

I would like to address you in mass meeting next Monday evening, May 14, at Masonic Hall, Third and Alder streets, at 7:30. I wish to give you an account of what I have essayed to do in politics, as also to give you my reasons for attempting to do so.

I am driven to this step by a number of causes. I have waited patiently (until patience ceases to be a virtue) for the men who now constitute the Democratic County Committee to carry out the instructions of the late Convention, one of which was to pay the debts justly incurred by myself in the preliminaries necessary to the proper election of delegates, advertising, etc., etc. Falsehoods innumerable are continuously spread about the streets by the ring's paid agents. I wish now to tell you the whole truth all at once in regard to how you are hoodwinked and misgoverned, and then retire from the enforced notoriety that I have been compelled to endure for the past two weeks.

I assure you that in no sense did I seek political emolument or advertisement, and if you will kindly allow, will retire from your gaze, politically speaking, for all time.

EUGENE C. PROTZMAN.

IN AND ABOUT PORTLAND.

TALK WITH A CATTLE MAN.—Mr. Wm. Kirkwood, of Walla Walla, was in the city yesterday. He is a large dealer in cattle, and says that 90 per cent. of all the fine stall-fed cattle consumed here this winter came from Eastern Oregon and Washington. "The days of eating blue beef in this country are passed," he said. "There has never been such beef seen in the market before as it has been supplied with this winter. The butchers now turn up their noses at poor beef, and no more will be used, except, perhaps, in some unusual season. The stock of stall-fed beef is now about exhausted, and grass beef will soon be in the market. There has been a great deal of poor mutton sent to market this year, but there is plenty of fat sheep now. I have just sold 3500 fat wethers to go East, and will ship 2000 more soon. Wethers are now worth $2 25. There will be twice as many shipped East this year as there were last."

SOLD HIS BEARS.—Mention was made a few days since in these columns of the fact that Mr. P. Nitsche, of Baker City, had among his earthly effects and property not exempt from legal execution, a couple of live "varmints," to wit, a ferocious young grizzly bear, and a common, plain black bear. Both these specimens of carnivora were very recently sold to a well-known druggist of this city and are expected to arrive here any day. What disposition is to be made of these uncouth, shambling, shuffling plantigrades, is not at present known. The grizzly is two years old and the ebony fellow has seen the snows of three winters.

SALE OF THE HOLLADAY PROPERTY.—G. G. Gammons, receiver of the stock of the Oregon Real Estate Company, will sell the same at the court house May 31, to pay off claims amounting to about $350,000 against the estate of Ben Holladay. This is pursuant to a decree of Judge Deady in the suit of Albert G. Bogart et al vs. Ben Holladay. The stock will first be offered for sale in lots of 500 shares. Then the entire 10,000 shares will be offered in a lump, and if the bid therefor exceeds the aggregate amount of the bids for 500-share lots, it will be sold in that manner; if not, it will be disposed of as first offered.

ODD FELLOWS PLOT AT RIVERVIEW.—Section 12, comprising ninety-three lots in Riverview cemetery, is under the control of the cemetery committee of Samaritan lodge, No. 2, I. O. O. F., having been set aside as an Odd Fellows' plot. This committee consists of D. E. Buchanan, H. S. Allen and E. St. John. It is the intention of the Cemetery Association to improve this section by grading and removing the trees and otherwise beautifying it. The Odd Fellows' plot is one of the prettiest spots in the cemetery.

PROTZMAN CALLS A MEETING.—Eugene C. Protzman publishes a card elsewhere in which he calls a mass meeting at Masonic hall next Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Mr. Protzman desires to address the meeting to render an account of what he has essayed to do and to explain how certain debts were justly incurred by himself in the preliminaries necessary to the proper election of delegates. He is driven to calling the meeting on account of the slowness of the democratic committee to act as they ought to act.

FOR FASTENING NUTS.—A model of a patent arrangment for fastening the nuts on bolts used in railroad bridges, for fastening fish plates on rails or in any place where the nuts are likely to become loosened by concussion or vibration, has been sent to this city by Sol Center, of Walla Walla, to be inspected by railroad men. The patent consists of a sort of hook on the end of the bolt and a loose ring weighted on one side which can be adjusted in the slot under the hook, so that it is impossible for the nut to become loose.

PROPOSED PRACTICAL BOOM.—A project is on foot to establish a boom just below the mouth of the Cowlitz river to catch the logs rafted down that stream. A great many logs are lost on account of sudden rises in the Cowlitz, and if a good boom were provided many more logs would be put in the river. There is a good place for such a boom, but it will cost some $10,000 or $15,000; and as the lumber business is not so lively as it was a short time since, it is not likely that the boom will be built at present.

TWO GAMES AT SEATTLE.—The Willamette baseball team will leave for Seattle this morning to cross bats with the Browns, of that city, to-morrow and Sunday. Tom Parrott, the pitcher, started yesterday. Here is the team the Willamettes will pit against the Browns: Turnbull, catcher; Parrott, pitcher; Buchtel, short stop; G. Parrott, first base; Bailey, second; W. Parrott, third; Kerns, left field; McCarthy, center field; Cook, right field. The Browns have a good nine if it beats this team.

TANNER CREEK SEWER CASE ARGUED.—The suit of Johan Paulson et al. vs. the city, to prevent the collection of the assessment for the construction of Tanner creek sewer was fully argued before the supreme court Monday and Tuesday by City Attorney W. H. Adams and ex-City Attorney Tanner for the city, and Hon. George H. Williams and S. B. Linthicum for the plaintiffs. This is on an appeal from the decision of Judge Stearns overruling the demurrer to the complaint interposed by the city.

SOMETHING TO COPY.—The New York Graphic contains a view of Seattle, which makes the area of that city appear equal to, if not greater than Portland. The population is placed at 20,000 and the territory 250,000. Every one knows this is rosecate. However, Seattle is a go-ahead place, and the immigration board here might pattern after the Sound city, without exaggerating, and make a fine showing. The class of buildings in the Queen City of the Sound, as it is styled, is a surprise.

FUNERAL.—The funeral of Geo. B. Chance took place from the home of his parents, No. 415 Second street, yesterday afternoon. During the afternoon a guard of honor from Co. I, O. N. G., of which the deceased was a member, was stationed at the house. The services took place at Taylor-street M. E. church, Rev. Alfred Kummer officiating. The floral offerings were numerous and very beautiful. Among them was a pillow from Company I. The body was buried in Riverview cemetery.

PANEL FILLED.—The following persons have been summoned and accepted to fill the regular panel of jurymen to serve in the state circuit court during the May term: James Wray, K. Burkheimer, S. Stafford, William Simmons, William Grooms, Johnson Cleveland, Charles Schafer, W. L. Higgins, J. F. Coyne, H. J. McInnis, Henry A. Bruce, Charles Schram, S. Mitchel, G. E. Usherwood, A. W. Atterberry, J. Mitchell, Jacob Strauss, Gustaf Wilson.

GOT UP STEAM.—Last evening at 7 o'clock steam was got up on the new steamer Telephone, and she was brought down to the Alder street dock from Smith Bros.' mill. Her furniture will be put in at once, and some of the minor details necessary to make her the handsomest as well as the fastest boat on the river will be attended to. Capt. Scott and his wife were in the pilot house on the short run, and the captain is delighted with her behavior.

RATES TO EASTERN WASHINGTON.—Mr. B. Campbell, general freight agent of the O. R. & N. Company leaves late this week for San Francisco to attend the meeting of the Transcontinental Association which takes place on the 15th inst. Among other things Mr. Campbell will bring up the question of a readjustment of rates from Portland to points in Eastern Washington—a matter in which jobbers of this city are now very much interested.

LEPERS TO BE SENT HOME.—At last Multnomah county is to get rid of the fifteen Chinese lepers who have been the cause of more or less annoyance and expense. The county court has entered into a contract with a shipper, whose name has been suppressed for the present, who has guaranteed that he will land the lepers on their native heath for $125 per capita, the total cost for transportation being $1875. The ship on which they are to sail has not arrived yet. It will leave here in about six weeks.

SIGNS OF SUMMER.—The Astorian says: The goose with 50 cents' worth of gold in its inwards has been heard from, this time at Ashland. It was due April 20. The 90-year-old man who chops a cord of wood before breakfast is on time. He hails from Lebanon this spring. The 600-pound sturgeon at The Dalles, the fight between a bear and a man in a boat at Vancouver, and the three elk that chased a man off the road near Chadwell have not showed up yet.

Additional Local on 3d, 6th and 8th Pages.

THEY WERE TOO FLEETFOOTED.—At 8 o'clock last night policeman Branch encountered about fifty noisy boys on Fourth and Montgomery streets. Each had a cow bell and was ringing it for all it was worth. Branch took after the lads and chased them half a mile, to Front and Caruthers streets, but did not succeed in capturing any of them. He brought half a dozen of the bells into the jail as a trophy of the chase.

MORE NEW BUILDINGS.—Mrs. Burke, who owns 25x50 feet fronting on Washington street, between Front and First, at the rear of the Kamm property, has taken out a building permit and will at once erect a two-story brick building thereon. The lower story is to be used for a restaurant. The Mount Hood Laundry Company have procured a permit to put up a wooden building at Sixteenth and Q streets.

NOT OUR SWINDLER.—Emil Coblentz, alias Daniels, who was recently arrested in San Francisco for forgery, was supposed to be a fellow who swindled several persons in Portland a few months ago. Detective Barry wrote to the police officials of San Francisco for a photograph and the description of Coblentz. The Portlanders interested failed to identify the photograph as that of the man who swindled them.

WILL BUILD CARS.—The Portland & Willamette Valley Railway Company have decided to build here a passenger car and sixty freight cars for their line. The trucks for these cars will come overland from San Francisco. Part of them were shipped yesterday and Mr. Wm. Reid, vice-president of the road, is looking for some place convenient to the road in which to build the cars.

POLICE COURT.—In the police court yesterday Judge Dement set the examination of Nelson Fuller, charged with manslaughter, for to-day. F. P. Taylor waived examination on three charges of larceny, and was held to answer in $300 bail. Frank Kelly, charged with robbing James Berry of $25, was discharged. His companion, John Murphy, was held to answer in $100 bail.

LETTING OF CONTRACTS POSTPONED.—Yesterday afternoon the Skidmore fountain committee held a meeting for the purpose of opening the bids and to award the contract. Some additional and unexpected details came up which render a delay necessary. Another meeting will be held by the committee in a few days, when it is expected that all preliminaries will be concluded.

LOCAL NOTES.

The Oregon Alpine Club now numbers 180 members.

It was in a saloon at Fourth and D streets where two loggers were robbed by sharpers.

The annual meeting of the Boys' and Girls' Aid Society will be held on the 22d of this month.

John Vera, a native of Portugal, filed with the county clerk yesterday his declaration of intention of becoming a citizen.

Heavy wind storms have prevailed in the interior for the last three days, which will be apt to check the too rapid growth of grain.

A speech was delivered at Albany, New York, Wednesday, and published in yesterday's OREGONIAN that was positively not written by Bent. Killin.

Fish Commissioner Thompson says that it is reported in San Francisco that fishermen on the Columbia charge $1 25 for fish, but make a rebate of 25 cents for cash.

The railroad company completed the survey of the proposed extension from Pomeroy to Patchs on Monday last, and have located their depot grounds at the latter place.

Marriage licenses were granted yesterday for Louis A. Drew and Linda Short, W. G. Bell and Florence Caldwell, Henry Rehnke and Antonette Detmering, G. L. Tout and Ellen Congdon.

Billy Devine, who will be remembered here as the pitcher for the Shoshone baseball club, lost a finger between car bumpers last week at Pocatello. He wont be able to play ball much this summer.

Owing to the advance in the price of wheat, considerable of that product which has been stored in the granaries of interior farmers is beginning to come on the market, and shipments will soon be renewed.

There is talk of running the paper called the World, printed in this city, as a campaign daily. As a weekly paper it is thin enough. Spread out into a daily the attenuation would be pretty nearly invisible and impalpable.

The Inland Empire has been blessed with abundant rains during the present month, and crops everywhere, from Lewiston down, are looking splendidly. The old adage that a dry April brings a showery May is again verified.

The cases of the four Chinamen charged with assaulting Ah Mui, a bookman, were dismissed by Justice Bushwiller yesterday on motion of the prosecution. The Chinese had settled the trouble among themselves and paid the costs.

Articles incorporating the Real and Personal Estate Company were filed in the county clerk's office yesterday by Charles H. Clarke, James G. Woodworth and Benjamin Bowman. The object is to buy, sell, lease, improve and mortgage real estate, and to loan money. Capital, $100,000.

Emil Weber began suit in the state circuit court yesterday against his brother Jacob for $306, with interest from August 1, 1885, and $75 25 with interest from July 26, 1886. Plaintiff alleges that the first named amount is due on a note, and the remainder is Jacob's proportion of a debt paid while the brothers were partners.

THE BULLION MINE.

A Valuable Piece of Property Being Developed After Years of Idleness.

Mr. Weiler, of Mount Idaho, is in the city with valuable specimens from the Bullion mine, located on Salmon river, in which his firm owns a quarter interest. Several carloads of ore were shipped from this mine to San Francisco last year and brought good returns, and this year they will ship every pound that can be packed from the mine to Mount Idaho. The mine is developed to a depth of 130 feet by a shaft and by two tunnels, all driven on the ledge, which shows a solid two-foot vein of rich ore, carrying largely of native silver, chlorides and silver sulphurets.

The Bullion has quite a history, as it was developed as early as 1864 by a joint stock company, and abandoned owing to the deficient knowledge of metallurgy in those days. The property was relocated two years ago by Hon. Stephen S. Fenn, ex-delegate to congress from Idaho territory, who still retains a three-fourths interest, and through whose efforts the property has been made self-sustaining under adverse circumstances that would have discouraged other men long ago. Portland capitalists have been negotiating for the purchase of the property for the past two months, and it is probable that definite arrangements for the transfer will be made before Mr. Weiler returns home.

MEETING OF WAR VETERANS

Notable Banquet of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion.

The Officers at Vancouver Entertain Comrades Right Royally—Toasts and Speeches—Election—Decorations and Music

Should auld acquaintance be forgo-
And never brought to mind,
Should auld acquaintance be forgot,
And days of auld lang syne.

Wednesday evening the Oregon and Washington territory department of the military order of the Loyal Legion of the United States held their third annual meeting at Vancouver, when the officers for the ensuing year were elected Later in the evening a splendid banquet was given at the garrison theater, under the auspices of the officer members of the Loyal Legion of the post The affair was a brilliant one, and in keeping with the occasion During the afternoon a number of the members of the organization in Portland left this city on the Lurline to attend the meeting and the banquet Among the members and guests who went over were Gen Rufus Ingalls Capt F J Babcock Capt M Crawford Dr F B Eaton Lieut T A Jordan, Lieut J G Megler Mr Otis Sprague Lieut William J Shipley Mr C P Upshur Maj J H Woodward Maj S R Harrington, Capt Robert Pollock Lieut Wm Kapus Maj H C Bostwick Col J M Drake Maj J R Hayden Capt J L Lombard Capt G E Caukin Lieut Geo C Sears, Capt B B Tuttle Capt J A. Varney Maj A F Sears Col D B Bush Maj. W T Kittredge Mr L Bigelow and J M Baltimore of THE OREGONIAN

RECEPTION OF THE GUESTS

A delightful ride on the river of less than an hour brought the guests to Vancouver Here every preparation was complete to give the visiting members a fitting, cordial reception All the officers of the garrison were at the wharf with ambulances to convey the guests to the quarters Both the infantry and artillery were out and the military band Accompanied by the officers and troops, the guests were escorted to the club house, where they were cordially welcomed, and every courtesy and attention bestowed to make their visit pleasant

At 5 o clock there was a battery drill on the parade grounds under command of Capt McCrea, Co E First artillery This occupied more than half an hour, and was immediately followed by dress parade under command of Col T M Anderson and the following company officers Capt Burke, Capt McCrea Lieut Murphy, Lieut Johnson Lieut Gustin Lieut Mulhall and Lieut Hasen This portion of the programme was very fine and the military display won much applause and many compliments from the guests

Immediately following the drill and parade the guests and the officers of the post made an informal call on Gen Gibbon at his residence. All were cordially received by Gen Gibbon who expressed much pleasure at the attention and respect thus shown. Half an hour or more was passed very pleasantly at the general's house, during which time he showed the visitors a number of highly prized and interesting historic relics of the late war

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

At 7 o'clock the annual meeting of the Loyal Legion was held. Among other business transacted the following officers were elected to serve for the ensuing year Commander Lieut. Wm Kapus S V commander, Capt. B B Tuttle, J V commander Col T M Anderson recorder Capt. G E Caukin, treasurer Lieutenant Col Jno M Drake registrar, Lieut Wm J Shipley chancellor, Maj J F Canby chaplain Capt Jas A. Varney Council—Capt Jas R Hayden, Acting Ensign J G Megler Capt Charles H Warrens Capt M W Wood and Maj H C Bostwick

RICH AND APPROPRIATE DECORATIONS

Business being over the members and guests prominent among whom was Governor Eugene Semple of Washington territory, formed in line and marched to the theater where the banquet was to be held Great taste and much artistic skill was displayed in the appropriate decoration of the hall and particularly the stage To Colonel Volkmar special credit is due for this part of the work

The stage was set with a mass of live ever green trees representing a forest—the ground thickly covered with natural leaves On the right of the stage was pitched a tent a cavalry gonfon fastened to the tent pole In front of the tent were stacks of rifles up on which lay a silken national flag A cavalry saddle bridle etc rested upon a frame near the tent, as though a trooper had just unsaddled there On the left of the stage pointing off into the timber, was a battery consisting of howitzer mortar piles of shells etc In the center of the background, a tripod, from which a camp-kettle swung over a fire A sentinel, in field equipment of knapsack, haversack, etc., paced slowly among the trees across the scene

As the guests arranged themselves at table a trumpet sounded first call for reveille And the full band sounded the reveille and as the curtain rose red fire, burst out of view threw the rosy glow of morning sunlight upon the camp and the sentinel came to "present arms." The chaplain then pronounced grace after which a trumpeter appeared near the campfire and sounded the familiar army mess call—"soupy soupy soupy etc when soup was duly served and the meal proceeded enlivened by the music of the band and the accompaniment of popping corks The table was set in the main hall of the post dining room which was beautifully decorated with flags, stacked weapons and implements of all arms in the service Large pictures of Grant and Sherman framed in wreaths of laurel large representations of the cross of the Loyal Legion and many other effective devices literally covered the walls

AROUND THE VESTAL BOARD

The table was set in the form of a Greek cross by which unique and clever arrangement the guests were placed near together and were enabled to face one another The following members and guests took seats at the table Col Anderson Capt Lombard Lieut Mulhall Maj Bostwick Capt Tuttle Capt Patten Maj Hayden Dr Withers Gov Semple Lieut. Megler Lieut Yeatman Col O Brien Lieut. Geoghegan Capt Varney Maj McCrea Lieut Kapus Capt Shafer Mr Upshur Maj Wikoff Judge Woodward Maj Sumner, Lieut Todd Mr Sprague Col Volkmar Mr Baltimore Col Lee Capt Babcock Capt Woodruff Capt Caukin Gen Metcombe Dr Norris Maj Jones Col Pollock Lieut Jordan Capt Warrens Lieut Col Drake Lieut Johnson Lieut Sears Maj Hoskes Dr Eaton Dr Rahbourne Capt Crawford Gen Ingalls Maj Burke Mr Bigelow Capt Starring, Col Bush Lieut Murphy Lieut Shipley Lieut O Neil

The four ends of the table were presided over by the following officers Col Anderson, Dr Norris, Maj Sumner and Col Lee Col Anderson acted as master of ceremonies and presided with grace and dignity befitting the occasion

THE MUSIC

During the time the banquet was in progress and between the toasts and responses the Fourteenth Regimental Band under direction of Wash Darrow, leader, discoursed delightful music Among the selections rendered were a potpourri of war songs in beginning the following songs and army calls "Reveille" grand march, "For God and Liberty," Tenting on the Old Camp Ground," The Flag of Columbia" "Marching Along," "The Assembly The Star Spangled Banner," "Vacant Chair" "Tramp, Tramp Tramp" "Glory Hallelujah," "Battle Cry of Freedom" "Kingdom Coming" Selection Mariana Duet for cornets, "Fly, Little Bird rendered by W Darrow and W Shea, Why Soldier Why Russian carriage song Egyptian march

TOASTS, SPEECHES AND SONGS

When all preliminaries were concluded, Col Anderson called the company to order and then in a few eloquent words tendered the visiting members and guests a most cordial welcome in behalf of his fellow-officers, His address of welcome was very warmly applauded, and was responded to in no less fitting manner by Lieut. Kapus, of this city, in behalf of the visitors. His allusion to the hospitality shown by the Vancouver officers and members was greeted with cheers Order being restored, Col. Anderson proposed the toast "To the President of the United States" which was drunk in silence

Col Anderson then paid a handsome tribute to the pioneer officers who had been stationed at Vancouver many years ago soon after it had been established as a military post He referred in very complimentary terms to Gen Rufus Ingalls who was present and who many years ago had been stationed at that place

Gov Semple being called upon to speak made a very neat and appropriate response in the course of which he spoke in glowing terms of the resources wealth and prospects of Washington territory His remarks elicited very warm applause

The presiding officer proposed the health of Gen Ingalls to which all drank Despite his reluctance to speak, Gen Ingalls was compelled to rise He said he was no speaker but felt constrained to heartily thank Col Anderson for his compliment, and also all the members and guests

Touching reference was made by Col Anderson to those who had taken part in the war but who had passed away

Capt Caukin then called the roll of the following names U S Grant David G Farragut Winfield Scott Hancock, Geo B McClellan Geo H Thomas Wm H Watkins, Lewis C Hunt Frank Taylor

To each name as called Lieut Kapus responded "Gone to answer the great roll call of the Grand Army above"

Tenting To-Night on the Old Camp Ground was then sung by all

Lieut Kapus then gave a brief account of the organization of the Oregon and Washington territory branch of the Loyal Legion its membership and prospects A high and deserved compliment was paid Capt Caukin for his zeal patriotism and labors in behalf of the legion Lieut Kapus proposed the health of Capt Caukin, and then stepping forward presented him with a casket containing an elegant, massive gold watch and chain appropriately inscribed as a fitting and substantial testimonial of the esteem in which he is held by all members of the organization

Accepting the beautiful present Capt Caukin briefly and feelingly responded

Col Anderson stated that he had numerous letters and telegrams of regret from those who could not be present but it would take too long to read them all He therefore would dispense in true military brevity with that formality He then proposed the toast To the Volunteer" and called on Mr Lucius Bigelow of THE OREGONIAN, to respond Mr Bigelow's address was a most eloquent tribute to those who responded to the call of our common country in her hour of sorest need and peril It was greeted with prolonged cheers and applause

"To Our Honored Dead" was proposed and drunk in silence.

To the toast of "To those who took part in the great war and who, at the close, returned to the pursuits of peace," Judge J H Woodward responded in a brief, excellent speech

"The Army Blue was then sung by Capt B B Tuttle, all joining heartily in the chorus

Col J G C Lee responded in an eloquent speech to the sentiment "The Old Way and the New Way, the Old Army and Navy, and the New"

Col Anderson proposed a toast to Maj Edwin V Sumner, which was responded to in a very fitting manner by his son, Maj S S Sumner of the Eighth cavalry His closing sentence, No man whose arm has ever been raised against this government can sit at this table, or wear this badge," panting to the insignia of the Loyal Legion on his breast, woke a storm of applause

"Larboard Watch" was sung by Capt Tuttle and Maj Hayden when Capt Woodruff was called to respond to the unique sentiment The Army Mule" in a greater compliment can be bestowed than to say that the effort in every way was worthy the fame of Mark Twain For five minutes Capt Woodruff kept the crowd in a constant roar of merriment

Dr Basil Norris responded in a happy vein to the toast 'The Medical Department

'To the Memory of Abraham Lincoln," was drunk standing and in silence

Maj Sumner proposed the health of Col Anderson which was drunk amidst much enthusiasm

To the sentiment of Turkey,' Col Volkmar made a witty response on that most useful and tooth-some bird and concluded by accusing Dr Norris of purloining his turkey This provoked great merriment

Mary had a Little Lamb," to the air of 'Rally Round the Flag" was sung by all with great gusto

In response to loud calls Capt Tuttle sang a patriotic song

Before adjourning—at the wee sma hours—Col Harrington was called up for a speech and responded briefly

AU REVOIR

It would be a hopeless task within reasonable space to attempt to report all the bon mots witty sallies, brilliant thoughts and bright flashes which were exchanged during the evening And so amidst song mutual congratulations and sentiment the company dispersed all expressing but one thought—that it was an occasion which would never be forgotten by those who participated Before dispersing all crowded around a huge punch bowl and renewed, in draughts of that genial insinuating but potent beverage old pledges of friendship

The members and guests from Portland were escorted by a number of officers from the post down to the Lurline at the close of the banquet and amid repeated adieus the steamer turned her prow Portlandward

ANOTHER DECLINATION

PORTLAND May 9 1888

To the Prohibition Party —I have been a citizen of Multnomah county for twenty years and have voted the republican ticket at every election I have several times scratched names of persons whom I considered unfit for office and shall do so again whenever persons whom I consider unfit for office force themselves into nomination

I believe in and endorse the main principles of the republican party and so long as there is any prospect of the republican party carrying out those principles I shall remain a republican

The issues of the present campaign are too important to be disregarded and I do not wish that any influence I may have should be used against those principles

I am fully satisfied that the prohibition movement in its present status is both untimely and impolitic and that all that ever can be effected in the way of prohibition or restriction can be much more effectually accomplished through either the republican or democratic parties

My name has been placed in nomination by the prohibition party of Multnomah county and with all due respect to that party and my thanks for the compliment I now withdraw my name as a candidate so that some other name may be placed on the ticket if deemed Respectfully

MILITARY SIGNALS IN USE.

The Torch, the Heliograph Sun Flashes and the Flag System.

Interesting Facts Brought Out by the Visit of Lieut O'Neil to Coach the First Regiment Signal Corps

Last week an article appeared in THE OREGONIAN in reference to the visit of Lieut. O Neil, of Vancouver, to this city to give some preliminary instructions in the system of military signaling to the officers of the Oregon National Guard An account was published of the nature of the instructions, explanations and practical experiments made by Lieut O'Neil at the Armory, and also a general description of the methods employed in signaling the theory of the system etc There are several important features belonging to the System of Visual Signaling" that are worthy of more extended notice in this connection

It was stated in the preceding article that there are three means employed in making signals—flags torches and the heliograph This latter instrument is of more recent invention It is a simple contrivance the principal thing being a small piece of mirror, so arranged that it can be made to emit "flashes" in the sun light This is, of course, easily accomplished by inclining the glass at a certain angle When using either a flag or a torch certain movements are made to represent dashes dots and periods, just as certain touches on the telegraph key produces sounds which are read by the operators For instance, a wave of the flag or torch, to the right signifies a dot, while a move to the left means a dash Bringing the flag or torch up to a vertical position and holding it in front of the face, means the space, or resting point between these dots and dashes, and thus enables the letters to be divided so that the work may be spelled out When the word has been spelled the person making the signals brings the flag or torch down in front with the upper part or top resting on the ground or at least inclining at a sharp angle By means of observing the four different movements the whole alphabet can be expressed words spelled, and ideas communicated Numerals can also be expressed and any number indicated

When the heliograph is employed the same theoretic principle is involved Quick, instantaneous flashes represent dots while longer ones mean dashes, and the intervals between separate the telegraphic signs There are decided advantages in using the heliograph over the ordinary flag—that is, of course when conditions of the weather are favorable Cloudy weather prohibits the use of the instrument, for, without sunlight, no flashes can be produced Under favorable circumstances the heliograph is made to be preferred Dots and dashes can be produced so much more rapidly on the instrument, and with much less labor, than by waving a flag Then too, these flashes can be read at a great distance It is claimed that these "brilliant glimpses" can, under very favorable conditions be seen for 120 miles Indeed it is asserted that there are instances on record where these flashes have been actually seen 150 miles But this requires a great elevation in order to overcome the curvature of the earth's surface This great distance seems incredible, but those experienced in the operations of these instruments affirm that such is the case A flag placed at sufficient elevation, and there being no natural obstruction to the view, such as forests or mountains, can be seen in a clear atmosphere by the aid of a strong field or marine glass for a distance of 25 to twelve miles, and even to that distance signals may be read But there is one difficulty in using the heliograph and that is the want of daylightness Unless the flashes are produced rather slowly and the dots and dashes separated very clearly there is great liability of confusion Even a very expert reader of these signals is liable to make a mistake and clearly to communicate ideas the operator must observe constant care and space his dots and dashes with at least one skip The heliograph may be operated after night by means of a clever arrangement of two small lamps attached to the instrument Flashes either long or short, can be produced by delicate adjustment

Signals by the heliograph and torches have been made to and fro between Portland and Vancouver a number of times Dr F B Eaton being at this end of the line and Lieut O Neil at the other Of course the question of elevation must be considered but owing to the attitude of some portions of Portland this difficulty can be readily obviated

The torches used by Lieut. O Neil when making a practical test at the armory last week were those recently invented These new torches have been already or doubtless soon will be adopted by the government and come into general use by the signal service, connected with the United States army and navy The torch consists of a hollow brass tube or rod about an inch in diameter divided into two sections. When the ends are joined the two rods are probably ten feet long At the upper end is attached an asbestos torch about seven or eight inches long and two and one half inches in diameter Oil is poured into the long rod until it is filled, or nearly so and then the torch is securely screwed on Thus arranged it is ready for use whenever required The flame is fed from the oil reservoir within the tube as rapidly as consumed When filled the supply is sufficient to keep the torch burning for a long time The flame is very bright strong and steady and can be seen a long distance in the darkness One peculiarity about these torches is that they can be used during the worst kind of weather A pelting rain or snow storm cannot quench the brightness of the flame and Lieut O Neil stated to a reporter that it would take a seventy mile per hour gale to blow one of these torches out.

A POLITICAL SPECULATION

Colored Citizens of Portland Charge Three of Their Number with Questionable Proceedings

PORTLAND May 9

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

In county of all friend and in the interest of right we the colored citizens of Multnomah county ask space in your paper for the purpose of making a public statement in order to set ourselves in a proper light before the public and especially before the republican party of Multnomah county

Charles H Brown Gus Waterford and Wm Brown met on Friday night of last week in some place and went through the form of organizing a so called republican club stating publicly in the papers of Saturday morning last that starring speeches were made by Messrs Charles Brown Gus Waterford and Wm Brown and that the audience was a large one consisting of both white and colored

Now the true facts relative to the formation and organization of this so called club are these Messrs Brown and son together with Gus Waterford for some reason best known to themselves conceived the idea of organizing a club for the sole purpose of fleecing the republican as well as democratic candidates out of all the money possible claiming to said candidates that they represented the colored people and that the money thus obtained was for the purpose of carrying on this so-called organization which for a fact is not in existence

The so called organization was effected solely by Wm Brown and son and Gus Waterford who are the members of the said club without even so much as a constituent, a single other colored citizen of Multnomah county will be induced them selves the officers of the club and published them even to morgan and both of the colored people of Multnomah county when the fact is no meeting has ever been held of the colored people for said purpose

Now then we have it from the most trustworthy source that these men have received and by their misrepresentations from some of the candidates on both sides of the fence and we know further that at least two of these men are at present most actively engaged in forwarding the interests of the democratic candidate for sheriff and the democratic candidate for constable in the North Portland precincts and at the same time these men are also representing to the republican candidate for sheriff that they are at work for him and so on all along both of the lines

Therefore, after full and careful consultation with all the colored citizens of Multnomah county, we have decided to take this means to warn all persons that these men are representing no one but themselves, and for revenue only

Whilst we shall ever stand loyal to the cause of the grand old party and its good principles, and intend to vote the republican ticket from top to bottom we do most solemnly protest against being listed on a piece of paper, and taken around and sold body and soul to the highest bidder for cash.

Let it be freely understood that the colored voters of Multnomah county are republicans and that no amount of democratic money will induce them to vote the democratic ticket

NEWS FROM THE EAST SIDE

Contrast Between Republican Enthusiasm and Democratic Despondency.

Gossip About Local Politics—The N Street Improvement—New Albina Boat—Hands Burned—Etc

The political outlook on the east side is decidedly in favor of the success of the entire republican ticket by a large majority There is no spirit nor enterprise shown among the democrats The attendance at the club meeting has been distressingly slim At the meeting called for Wednesday night there were only eight present and the meeting was not called to order at all A democrat who has been endeavoring to maintain the organization said yesterday 'There is no spirit no enthusiasm and no organization We didn't have enough to hold a meeting Wednesday night, and so we put out the lights and went home I think the democratic party should have a guardian"

Contrast the enthusiastic spirit as shown in the republican meetings of the Central club with that displayed in the democratic meetings The hall has always been filled with ladies and gentlemen and the best of spirit provailed A gentleman who has been making a careful investigation of the political situation on the east side said yesterday 'There never has been a time when the republicans were better united 1Pum' Kelly will make a splendid run on the east side where he is so well known He will have the largest majority of any candidate on the ticket. The other candidates will be well supported on the east side. The people understand the importance of the coming election and the necessity of electing the entire legislative ticket You may set it down, Mr Reporter the republicans on the east side will do their part for the republican ticket"

About the same views were expressed by a large number of prominent republicans It may be added that for a presidential candidate the favorite among republicans over here is Gresham

There is not much talk about municipal election matters Bancroft of the First ward, Humphrey Second ward, West Third ward and Murphy of the Fourth ward—councilmen—will go out It is not known whether any of the four named desire re-election G R. Dosdman is mentioned as Mr. West's successor in the Third ward Mr Terry and Alex. Donaldson are spoken of in the Fourth ward. It is stated that there will be no opposition to the renomination of A W Lewellyn as recorder He has made an efficient officer and is now thoroughly familiar with city business It is not known whether there will be a third party prohibition ticket in the field but it is thought not. The Union Labor Club have a meeting to-morrow night to determine whether political action or not will be taken But these side issues will not cut much of a figure in the coming election.

N STREET.

The N street elevated roadway has been completed and the street commissioner and city surveyor have filed their acceptance of the same in the office of the auditor and clerk It looks as if Mr Lee Phelps has done a good job on the bridge The graders east of the bridge are making the dirt fly The low place at the east end of the bridge is being filled up with the earth taken from the cuts that are being made eastward The improvement is an extensive one and it would expedite things if about double the number of men were employed The rails for the street car line are distributed along the street and will be put down as soon as the improvement is finished

THOSE CISTERNS

Speaking of the cisterns ordered by the council, the Indicator says At a meeting of the council Monday evening, the committee on fire and water were ordered to receive bids for two cisterns—30 000 gallons capacity—one at L and Fifth and at J and Fourth While these cisterns are badly needed for protection in case of fire we suggest that it would be good policy to change the location of the cistern from Fourth and J to either Third and J or Fourth and I, on account of the solidity of the ground at the former location The ground on Fourth and J is a fill, made up from anything but solid foundations for a cistern of 30,000 gallons capacity At the same time Third and J or Fourth and I, would prove equally as convenient in the protection of property from fire either location is one block nearer the engine house, and the cistern would rest on a safe and solid foundation

THE MACHINERY RECEIVED

The machinery for Montgomery's new propeller on the ways in Albina, has been received, and Wednesday the heavy boiler was being removed from the flat car down the hill to the place where the boat is being made ready to receive it The boiler is a large and powerful one for so small a craft, and it would seem that the main object is to obtain a high rate of speed There will be lively times on the river when the new craft commences to make trips between Albina and Portland The traffic with Albina has become very large within the past year and more and better facilities are needed The new steamer will supply the want

Matthew Arnold Didn't See It

Boston Post

When Matthew Arnold was here in Boston he made some remarks in familiar conversation which showed very strikingly his lack of the sense of humor which he betrays in his article in the Nineteenth Century It was at a well known literary and artistic club that this defect in his intellectual make up was made manifest One of the members had told a story which the late James T Fields who was a ready humorist in his way recited to relate of his experience in a western town where he had delivered a lecture on some of the old author He said that after the lecture an old farmer who had become somewhat confused by his mingling personal reminiscences of Wordsworth with literary associations with Pope and who was thus led to think that Mr Fields was a contemporary of all the writers upon whom he discoursed came up to him and said Was you personally acquainted with Dryden?

Every person who heard the story, with the exception of Mr Arnold at once recognized the humorous inventiveness displayed in it but the epitome of sweetness and light took it at literal fact and exclaimed How unpleasant I had no idea that there was so little appreciation of chronology in literature among lecture audiences as Mr Field found On this occasion also he could not but notice the self complacency with which Mr Arnold uttered his fluent judgment on every subject that was talked about But though his manner was hard and dry, with no touch of the sympathetic quality which is so delightful in a man of letters, I felt, after hearing his comment on Mr Field's story, that he deserved pity rather than reproof. Nothing but trepanning could have let any humor into his brain and with his constitutional incapacity for the infusion the operation would have been too risky to have justified the attempt, though it was the last chance of brightening his outlook upon literature and life.

THE LITTLE SOD SHANTY

The First House of the Prairie Pioneer and How It was Built.

American Agriculturist.

The "little sod shanty," which is such a characteristic feature of the newer prairie regions is better as a temporary habitation than it looks Its dun-earth walls and shapeless outline have nothing to gratify the artistic sense But it possesses qualities of far more practical importance than mere beauty of form or color It is warm in winter and cool in summer No other dwelling affords more secure protection against storms like those of last January which swept across the country from the extreme North to the Gulf of Mexico Though rude and primitive in external appearance many sod cabins are finished in idoor style which renders them more than comfortable Narrow strips of boards are set against the inside of the walls and nailed to the floor as well as to horizontal strips built into the wall for the purpose, one at the top and one midway from top to bottom Then cheap cotton cloth or building paper is tacked on these strips all around the room and wall paper is then applied in the usual way with paste An inside finish as thus given equal to that of any frame house The roof is of boards, instead of earth sodded over

With ingenuity taste and a few hundred feet of pine boards an enterprising settler and his wife will soon build themselves a habitation from the prairie sod which will be far superior to the auld clay biggin which sheltered Scotland's ploughman bard or the adobe dwellings of the Mexicans But the sod shanty is fast disappearing as a feature of the prairie region It was never built with a view of more than temporary occupation, giving way to more commodious and stylish dwellings as soon as the circumstances of the settler warranted the change Their presence has hitherto marked the crest of the advancing wave of civilization In a few years they will have disappeared like the Indian wickups 'and 'tepees,' and their place will be occupied by substantial farm houses with spacious barns and out-buildings and various other improvements

The Red Dog Did It.

Detroit Free Press

There were seven or eight boys and a dog fight on an alley off second street yesterday as a policeman happened along and after clubbing the dogs apart, he said to the largest boy

Now then, I want to know all about this"

Well you know,' replied the boy I was coming up the alley with my spotted dog That boy there was coming down the alley with his black dog'

And you knew the dogs would fight, of course!'

Oh no sir When we came up to each other the dogs began to play We were talking about going a fi ling when that boy over there came along with a little red dog'

Where is it?

Run away sir His red dog began to pick a fight with my dog and then the black pitched in This let the red dog out and away he went

'But why didn't you separate them?"

'Then who'd get the money?"

'Money! So you had money up?'

'Why, after they got to fighting each of us bet on our own dog of course"

Then I want—!'

But he didn s get one of them and while he halted at one end of the alley to bre the after his run the mob appeared at the other and the referee announced

Being as this mill was interfered with by the police I shall decide it a draw and the stakes will go to buy oranges for the crowd'

Impurities in the blood produce diseases, bodily and mental health depend upon a healthy condition of the blood. The blood, particularly in the spring and during the hot summer months, becomes clogged with impurities, which poison it and generate disease. A harmless blood purifier, without a particle of mineral poison in it, such as mercury or potash, is necessary to remove these impurities and to restore the healthy tone of mind and body. The best purifier and tonic known to the world is Swift's Specific (S.S.S.) in regard to its wonderful purifying and tonic powers we give a few testimonials as follows

Mr Wm A. Siebold, with Geo P Rowell & Co 10 Spruce Street, New York, writes March 8th, 1887 "I feel it my duty, for the benefit of others who may be afflicted as I was to write you this letter, which you can use as my testimony in any way you choose. I will answer any inquiry from others in relation to the facts herewith stated. In February last I suffered great pain and inconvenience from boils, all over my neck, I could not turn my head without acute pain and my blood was in poor condition. After trying all the usual remedies in such cases, and finding no relief by the persuasion of Mr. J. W Fears, Manager of your New York Office, I used one bottle S. S. S, and I improved rapidly and very soon I was entirely relieved of my 'Job's Comforters." Now not a sign of my affliction can be seen. I feel strong and cheerful. S. S. S. is a fine tonic as proved in my case. I sleep soundly and my appetite is good.

Dr J K Cheney, a well-known physician writes from Hilsville, Georgia "I use S. S. S. in convalescent fever cases with the best results. It will, in my judgment, prevent summer dysentery, if one will take a few bottles in the spring, thus preparing the bowels for the strains of summer"

Mrs. Scott Linton, 176 Zane street (Island), Wheeling, West Virginia, writes "Having used S S S. for the blood, I can safely say that it beats anything I have used to cleanse the blood and make a new being out of a person."

Mr M. S. Hamlin, Winston, N C., writes "I use it every spring. It always builds me up, giving me appetite and digestion, and enabling me to stand the long, trying, enervating hot summer days. On eating it I soon become strong of body and easy of mind."

A PROSPEROUS INSTITUTION.

Annual Meeting of the Portland Trust Co. of Oregon.

Election of Directors—Workings of the Company, and Its Various Features Explained—List of Stockholders.

The annual meeting of the Portland Trust Company of Oregon was held at the company's office, No. 109 Third street, Ainsworth block, yesterday afternoon.

The report of the directors to the stockholders showed the business to be in a satisfactory condition. The company's course for the past year has been careful and conservative.

Our citizens are rapidly learning to appreciate the usefulness of such an institution. The company's business is largely composed of transactions in which it acts as agent, attorney in fact, or trustee for our own citizens or non-residents.

During the year it has loaned out funds for residents of Oregon, California, Maryland, Michigan and Massachusetts. Trustees, guardians and capitalists residing in this and other states will find its plan of loaning trust funds, safe, reliable and productive of good returns in interest.

All speculative transactions are strictly prohibited, and extreme care is exercised in the selection of investments. The company has considerably over $100,000 worth of valuable real estate for sale. It holds about $75,000 worth of real estate in trust. It has relieved the financial difficulties of a number of persons during the year, holding their property in trust, and caring for the same until a favorable opportunity to sell arises, when it will recoup its advances and return the surplus to the original owners. It acts as agent for the care of a large amount of property, on which it pays the taxes, insurance premiums, attends to repairs, and, in fact, relieves the owners of all care.

It has the renting of sixty houses and stores. This branch of its business is rapidly increasing, and property owners will find it to their advantage to employ a responsible corporation to care for their buildings, collect rents, attend to repairs, taxes and insurance, especially when its very moderate terms are taken into consideration.

The company will also purchase property or erect buildings upon favorable terms. For example: Suppose a man with $10,000 wishes to purchase $5000 worth of real estate and erect a $10,000 house. He can deposit his $10,000 with the company which will purchase the property and hold the same in trust for its benefit. He can then build his house, the company paying the contractors, and advancing the $5000 necessary to complete the building. On repayment of its advances, the property is deeded over to the owner and the matter closed without the trouble or expense of a mortgage or other legal formalities. Estates are cared for and necessary advances made, thus avoiding the necessity of ruinous sales of the real property or other assets of the estate.

The company receives on storage in its safe-deposit department all kinds of valuables at moderate rates. It pays interest on saving deposits. The company may be made trustee for the care of estates of minors, or decedents or persons laboring under any disability. It will act as agent or attorney-in-fact in all cases in which one individual or corporation can lawfully serve another. It also acts as assignee or receiver.

When the uncertainty of life, or of continued solvency or competency of individual trustees is considered, the superior security of a corporation, organized for such purposes and with perpetual succession, will be apparent, and the list of directors and stockholders herein given will, it is believed, encourage confidence that it will faithfully carry out any such trust that may be committed to it.

After hearing the report, the stockholders present proceeded to elect a board of directors, with the following result:

He Regards Portland as the Most Promising City on the Coast.

Mr. J. B. Montgomery, the well-known capitalist, returned yesterday from Puget sound and, answering an OREGONIAN reporter's inquiry as to what he found new or startling over there, said: "I found Seattle and Tacoma very lively towns, wide awake, progressive, full of industries, and creating new opportunities.

"Over at Tacoma I met Judge S. C. Hastings, of California, a five times millionaire, who is keeping busy investing his income. He told me that after looking carefully over the cities of Puget sound, that Portland was good enough for him to live in and invest his money. Judge Hastings is going to make a trip to Iowa, to be gone about four months. He will then return to Portland to reside. He said to me as we parted: 'I regard Portland as the most promising city on the Pacific coast.'"

SUDDEN DEATH.

FIRST OREGON STRAWBERRIES.

A Small Shipment Received from Roseburg—Probable Scarcity of Pickers.

The first lot of Oregon strawberries received here this year arrived yesterday from W. V. Johnson, of Roseburg. There were only twenty pounds, but they were very fine and brought him twenty-five cents per pound.

This is two weeks earlier than they were last year and three weeks earlier than in 1886. THE OREGONIAN of May 20, 1887, had the following item: "Last night's steamer from California arrived here in time to discharge fruit and get it to commission houses before closing hours. Receipts included a large lot of strawberries, a ton or two of cherries and a small sprinkling of oranges and bananas. Part of the strawberries were milldewed, yet found ready sale at 90 cents per box. Before 6 o'clock the berries had all been disposed of. The retail price continues firm at 25 cents a pound. Strawberries from the east side ought to be in the market by the last of next week."

May 23, 1887, there was this item: "The first strawberries of the season from the neighborhood of Portland, were brought in yesterday by Thomas McMannus, of Mount Tabor. It was a five pound lot, and the berries were bought by Gus Strube, of East Portland; price, 50 cents per pound.

TWO YEARS AGO.

Here is a local of May 7, 1886: "Strawberries will be later than usual this season in this section, which would give the Southern Oregon gardeners an opportunity to get a good price for their berries; but unfortunately a smart frost did considerable damage out in that part of the state. California strawberries and cherries are in market, but they have a sort of metallic taste, which prevents many from indulging in them."

And one of May 25, strawberries came into market yesterday, both from the vicinity of this city, from The Dalles and from Southern Oregon. They were of very fair quality, and retailed at 35 cents per pound.

On June 1, 1886, strawberries were plenty at 12½ cents for the very finest.

PROBABLE SCARCITY OF PICKERS.

"That was a very good article in THE OREGONIAN this morning about strawberries, but you forget one point," said a well-known commission merchant to a reporter. "There is likely to be a scarcity of pickers. Chinamen are very scarce, and I am told they will demand $1 50 a day. The usual price is 90 cents to $1. Now, picking strawberries is a healthy work for half-grown children, but have you ever noticed how few boys around here want work? You'll find a hundred young hoodlums seeking out a precarious existence selling papers and doing odd jobs, just to be able to loaf in a city, in preference to earning a dollar a day at such light work as picking berries. The farmers who have large patches and have to pick berries twice a day when they are ripening fast, will have to hustle themselves to get enough help."

PERSONAL.

Mr. Frederick Townsend returned yesterday from a four weeks' trip to San Francisco.

Mr. A. I. Weller, of Lewis & Company, San Francisco, is in the city, and is pleased to be in the metropolis again.

Mr. E. P. Bosworth, who went to California last November for the benefit of his health, will arrive home to-day.

Mr. Samuel D. Smith will leave on Saturday for Oakland, California, where his family will reside for several months.

Mr. Frank Steinbig returned from the East on Wednesday. While he has seen many big "towns" he is satisfied with his native city.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Robert, of Salem, are in the city on their wedding trip. The bride was Miss Anna Lotridge, adopted daughter of the late Geo. D. White, of Woodburn.

Mr. H. H. Browning, general superintendent of the Northern Pacific Express, is expected to-night from St. Paul. He will be accompanied by M. G. Hall, superintendent in this city, who has been to Helena, M. T.

Mr. A. Burke, chairman of the democratic state central committee, was in the city yesterday. To a reporter who asked him what were the prospects of the democratic party, he said: "It has no prospects. We are a poor party: we have no money and no prospects."

Rev. S. G. Irvine, of Albany, passed through the city yesterday on his way to Colfax, W. T., where he will assist in the dedication of the new church of the United Presbyterian society at that place. He will remain in the upper country about two weeks.

Mr. T. Eddy Reck, who has been spending the past two months in the East on business for the firm of Snell, Hettsha & Woodard, returned on Wednesday, looking the picture of health and happiness. He visited several of the leading Eastern cities and what he did not see was not worth seeing.

Mr. S. C. Beckwith, manager of THE OREGONIAN's New York office, writes under date of the 3d inst.: "We had a very delightful call this morning from M. Fried, Esq., and family of your city. The New York Herald and World had no charms for the bright little lady of the party, who said THE OREGONIAN was as necessary to her as her breakfast."

Arthur W. Lindsay, who has been a student at the Bishop Scott academy for the past two years, left yesterday to take a position in the First National bank at Sprague. Mr. Lindsay, besides being the leader of the school band, was a most popular boy among his schoolmates and will be much missed by them.

Mr. Samuel Wilder Pease writes to a friend in this city that he has given up the stage, and will hereafter confine himself to business pursuits. He is now in New York, where he has fallen into a remunerative position as private secretary for the manager of the Nicaragua Canal Company. Wilder writes that he will shortly accompany his employer on a trip abroad, and that he finds his present position a most congenial one in comparison to the vicissitudes of the operatic stage.

AUTOMATIC ENGINES.

TACOMA, W. T., Feb. 25, 1888.

Messrs. Russell & Co., Portland, Oregon—Gentlemen: We have been running the automatic engine bought of you for a week or more and so far we are much pleased with it. Our engineer says it is the best engine he ever ran, and he has had extensive experience in building and running of engines. What he notices especially is its uniformity of motion under varying load. He tested it with his speed indicator, and found there was no change in the number of revolutions when the dynamo was plugged in or cut out.

Yours truly,
TACOMA LIGHT & WATER CO.
By J. H. HUGGINS, Secretary.

AN APOPLECTIC STROKE.

Chief of Police Parrish Seized With a Slight Attack.

The Symptoms Not Alarming—A Numbness on the Right Side, but the Brain Clear—Physician's Statement.

Chief of Police Samuel B. Parrish was the subject of what is technically known as a slight apoplectic seizure yesterday forenoon, and is now confined to his home. The intelligence that he was suddenly stricken down on the streets while coming to police headquarters from his house, caused a great deal of public comment, and several incorrect and exaggerated statements concerning the attack and present condition have been extensively circulated. The following are the real facts in the case:

For more than a fortnight Chief Parrish has been suffering acutely at intervals with headache. These annoyances and distressing pains have been generally confined to the back portion of his head. Several days ago he incidentally mentioned the fact to Dr. Mackenzie. Notwithstanding these persistent headaches, Chief Parrish was about in the discharge of his official duties with the exception of three or four days last week, when he was confined to his home with a severe attack of the diarrhœa. This reduced him physically very much. Wednesday morning he arose and felt considerably improved. He left his house and started down to his office. Before proceeding far he became suddenly very dizzy, and was seized with nausea. He fell to the sidewalk, and lost temporary power over his legs and arms, being so helpless that he had to be carried to a hack, and was then conveyed to his home.

Dr. Mackenzie was summoned hastily. He found Mr. Parrish very helpless, his speech thick, and almost unintelligible, a slight drooping of the right eye and a slight numbness in the right leg and arm. There was every indication to the practiced, experienced eye of the physician of some temporary cerebral disturbance, or oppression. His mind, though, was unclouded. He rested very well Wednesday night, and when the doctor called yesterday morning he found the patient comfortable. His utterance was quite clear and his mind was as bright and active as ever. There was, however, a prickling feeling about his right hand and foot, accompanied by a slight numbness of the extremities. He was perfectly free from pain and was resting easily. Last evening when Dr. Mackenzie called again Mr. Parrish was greatly improved. The doctor says he feels quite sanguine from present symptoms, and thinks the effects of the attack will be only temporary. Should there be no recurrence of the seizure, there is every reason to hope for a speedy recovery. Every caution is being exercised to keep the patient perfectly quiet and prevent anything likely to produce the least excitement. No persons but the members of his family are permitted to see the patient or converse with him, under the strict injunction of the attending physician.

THE ILWACO RAILROAD.

It Will be Running Across the Peninsula by July 1—Stumbling Block to an Extension.

Work on the railroad from Ilwaco to Shoalwater bay is being pushed with great vigor, and the opening of the road for traffic by July 1st is almost an assured fact. From fifty to 100 Chinamen, besides teams, etc., are kept constantly at work, and as the amount of material to be handled is very light, the road to Tinker's place will soon be graded and ready for the track. Three car loads of steel rails have been delivered already, and the remainder will follow at once. Piles for the new roadway and trestle at Ilwaco are being delivered and work on the same will commence next week. It was the intention of the company to build through to Shoalwater bay at once, and then consider the project of continuing their road to Gray's harbor, making a transfer across Shoalwater bay by steamer, but a stumbling block has appeared in the person of one Bellows, who claims such huge damages for right of way across a strip of ocean beach that the directors, at their last meeting, decided to stop the road short of his place, not feeling disposed to benefit property and pay more for the privilege than the whole property could have been bought for prior to commencement of work.

If this difficulty should be removed the road will be continued at once, and will then be a great addition to the comfort of settlers along the route, affording a means of easy communication with Portland and Astoria. Should the stumbling block remain in statu quo, the benefit to be derived from the opening of the road will be greatly impaired. It is to be hoped that such will not be the case, as there are large tracts of land that offer homes to the immigrants now coming into the state, that will be easy of access, after the road is built but which are now so isolated that they are comparatively valueless.

WILLS ADMITTED TO PROBATE.

The will of Timothy Sawyer was admitted to probate in the county court yesterday. Value of estate unknown. Deceased owned property in Iowa and Washington territory and about $4000 worth in the Sheldon Murray donation land claim. The will directs the Oregon executor, James Abraham, to sell all personal and real property in Oregon and Washington, and after paying expenses give the remainder of the money to Francis and Horace Sawyer, as trustees, who are directed to convert the Iowa property into cash. The estate is to be distributed as follows: One-fifth to Alfred Sawyer, brother of the deceased, one-fifth each in equal shares to the children of Martha Creel and Clarissa Burkholder, testator's sisters, and one-fifth to Francis Sawyer and one-fifth to Horace Sawyer, brothers of the deceased. The executors nominated in the will are James Abraham of this county, Francis Sawyer of Fort Madison, Ia., and Horace Sawyer of Denmark, Ia.

The will of Edward S. Simmons was filed for probate. Testator directs that all his property be converted into cash for the benefit of his daughter, Virginia E. Simmons, of Philadelphia, Pa. W. B. Robinson and H. H. Lane of this city are appointed executors.

WHY SUPPORT IS WITHHELD.

Inside Facts as to the Political Course of an Alleged Newspaper.

It has been noticed that the Portland News has recently been printing letters against Joe Simon. Every newspaper man sees instantly that these letters are the News' own fabrications. The names appended are purely imaginary, and the performance of the News is an imitation of a habit of Mr. Tools, who was constantly writing letters to himself.

This is, in fact, an attempt to extort money from Simon. It will be remembered that Johnny Wilcox, who advertises himself as proprietor of the News, demanded as conditions of supporting the republican county ticket that he be paid $1500 in cash, have a place for himself on the legislative ticket, and be assured of half the proceeds of the district attorney's office for his associate, R. M. Dennett. These conditions were not granted, and now Wilcox is striking for money again.

He said recently: "Mr. Simon can fix this up, or take the consequences." That is, if Joe would "come out" freely, the News would commend him to the public as a very worthy man, and give him an active, disinterested and truly honest support. It looks as if Joe hadn't "come out" yet.

There are many persons who disapprove of some of the past political actions of Joseph Simon; but whatever may be thought of him, and how much soever he may be censured, there are no persons of decency who do not think a blackmailer very despicable.

or in manufacturing and other enterprises, Albina presents to-day the most absolute assurance of the largest increase on such investments of any spot in Oregon. It is beautifully situated on the river opposite the north end of Portland, and DOWN the river from the central portion of Portland. The bridges already built, under construction and contemplated, are fast driving the heavy business of the city and nearly all of the shipping further and further down stream. Soon all of it will be carried on below the railway and passenger bridge. Albina will get the benefit of this move, and even now she has the built by the Northern Pacific Terminal Co., in which the O. R. & N. Co., the Union Pacific, the Oregon Short Line, Southern Pacific and Northern Pacific Companies are interested, are located here. These shops have just been completed, and will soon commence operations with a large force of workmen.

Other industrial enterprises are located here, among which are the Portland Flouring Mills, the largest in Oregon. A dry dock capable of accommodating the largest ship afloat, is now also under construction.

Several companies are now organizing to embark in other industrial and manufacturing enterprises, all of which will be located at Albina, because it is here that of the city and on across the peninsula to the banks of the Columbia are to be pushed vigorously to completion, one being now under construction and the franchise procured and iron ordered for the other.

No other locality in Oregon has such solid, substantial backing. No other spot in Oregon can have just the peculiar combination of
